Hamrick Named For Farm Agent Job

Advisory Action Is Equivalent To Appointment

Newly Named Official Succeeds Swenson; Came Here As Aide

George H. Hamrick has been recommended for the job of Pickaway County agriculture agent, it was announced today. He is now serving as associate agent.

Recommendation of Hamrick for the job, announced by the Pickaway County General Extension Advisory Council, is regarded as tantamount to the appointment. Sources familiar with the procedure here said they cannot recall any time when such a recommendation was rejected in Columbus.

In accord with routine, the local recommendation is sent to the board of trustees of Ohio State University for formal approval.

Two top officials of the state's farm extension organization were present when the local council selected Hamrick to succeed Dick Swenson, whose resignation as agent to accept a commercial position was announced last month. Among those at the meeting were Robert McCormick, district and Clair Young, assistant state 4-H leader.

* * *

THE advisory council is made up of spokesmen from the various communities and townships in the county. It recommended that Hamrick's appointment be made effective October 16.

Notified of the recommendation, Hamrick said:

"I'm certainly mighty pleased and honored. I consider the job a real distinction, and I know I'll have to work hard to be a worthy successor to all the highly capable men who have held the job before me.

"I think I've already made it clear that I'm glad to be in Circleville and Pickaway County, where I have had the opportunity to meet so many real people during the relatively short time since my arrival. I'm looking forward to meeting a lot more during the busy times ahead."

Hamrick's latter reference was to the 1956 Pickaway County Fair, which opens September 12 for a four-day run at the fairgrounds. By virtue of his office, Hamrick will be a central figure in many of the fair's activities. For some time he has been engaged in help-

Working Man Hearing Plea To Give Backing To Adlai

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Adlai E. Stevenson called on the working man today to "choose vision instead of complacency" in this election year and "march with the Democrats along the road to the new America."

The Democratic candidate for President accused the Republicans of offering labor and the nation proposals and pious words but not performance.

Stevenson conceded there were "forward-looking parts" in the acceptance speeches President Eisenhower and Vice President Nixon delivered at the Republican National Convention here last month. But he said that sitting complacently on the convention floor and "chanting for the leader they seldom follow" was "the old Republican wrecking crew" which will vote to keep those segments of the speeches from ever becoming law.

"We must face the fact," the Democratic nominee said, "that every four years the Republican candidates talk like Democrats. I'm always flattered when they borrow our ideas, but they don't keep them long enough."

Republican senators and congressmen, he declared, cheer President Eisenhower's words but vote against his proposals.

Putting it into figures, Stevenson said that 85 per cent of Senate Democrats voted to provide social security benefits to disabled persons at age 50, whereas 86 per cent of the Republicans voted no.

Stevenson roused the American Legion to both bravos and boos in addressing its annual convention in Los Angeles Wednesday.

He came through some razzing from some of his fellow legionnaires with no chip on his shoulder.

The audience for which his speech was prepared today was another convention, calculated to be more friendly — a convention of the International Assn. of Machinists.

The advance word from Clayton Fritchey, Stevenson's press secretary, was that "you can bet the speech to the machinists won't be antilabor."

For that matter Stevenson's address to the Legion wasn't anti-Legion. But parts of it were anti-Republican. And the reaction from an organization with a membership with divided party loyalties was a mixture of hoorays and hoots.

The applause and cheering was more frequent and in greater volume. But the booing still added up to one of the severest hecklings any man running for President has received in recent history.

Fritchey reported Stevenson wasn't upset over the booing evoked by what the press secretary called one of the most significant speeches Stevenson will make during the campaign.

"Maybe the mixed reaction will be a good thing, if it sets people to thinking," Fritchey said.

It began, as an overtone to thundering applause, before the Democratic nominee said a word, when he walked onto the stage.

It reached a peak near the end of the speech, when Stevenson remarked that those who play politics with foreign policy are enmies of peace, adding:

"I would remind you that the Republican-controlled 83rd Congress harassed the Republican President so much that he even considered forming a third party."

There was a rumble of mingled applause and some booing.

Stevenson got more applause at the conclusion of his text.

Smiling, he added a postscript:

"We can't always agree on everything in this country. But it is nice to live in a land where we have the right to disagree."

Excise Taxes Hit Record High, Report

WASHINGTON (AP) — The public paid more federal taxes last year on whisky, gasoline and autos than in any previous fiscal year.

The Internal Revenue Service reported today that excise taxes yielded the government $10,004,-195,000 in the 1956 fiscal year ended June 30.

In that total, the service said, consumers paid record amounts on all types of alcoholic beverages and on gasoline.

The excise tax total, third largest in history, includes hundreds of items in addition to taxes on whisky, gasoline and autos.

Taxes on liquors at $10.50 a gallon piled up to $2,062,242,000, the first time the total ever went over the $2 billion mark.

Coupled with peak yields from levies on beer and wines, alcohol taxes brought in $2,920,574,000. That was $123 million more than in fiscal 1954, the previous top year.

Gasoline taxes yielded a new high of $1,030,397,000, about $75 million more than in fiscal 1955, the previous record yield.

The booming sales of automobiles in the last half of 1955 helped to boost the excise tax return on vehicles to a record $1,-376,372,000.

Tobacco taxes, another big source of revenue, brought in $1,-613,497,000, but this was below the record set in fiscal 1953. It followed controversial reports that certain types of cancer might be attributed to smoking.

Minimum Salary For Clerics Asked

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP)—A minimum salary of $4,000 a year was proposed today for 2,000 ministers and executives of the Evangelical and Reformed Church.

The figure is $400 above the current recommended minimum fixed by the last general meeting of the church in 1953.

A report by the commission on church and ministry presented to the 10th triennial General Synod which ends Friday proposes the higher minimum in addition to parsonages. It also would "remind congregations of their responsibility for frequent reviews of the salary of the pastor."

72nd Wedding Anniversary Being Noted

BOYERTOWN, Pa. (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Slotter are observing a wedding anniversary today. Nothing special in the way of entertainment. Some of the children might drop by. That's all.

"Nothing to get excited about. Can't understand all the commotion anyway," was the way Reuben put it.

Of course, wedding anniversaries are hardly a novelty to the couple. After all, this is only their seventy-second.

Ellamina Crouthamel was a bride of 20 and Reuben, whom she'd known as a neighbor boy all her life, was a year younger when they took their vows at the home of their minister, Rev. Jacob Kehm in Sellersville.

The retired farmer and his wife have a simple philosophy to offer.

"To have a long marriage requires, of course, a long life. And the healthy life of a farm is the best advice I can offer," Reuben observed.

His wife, with an impish smile had this to add:

"Men can't do without women. Remember this, girls, and live by the golden rule, and you'll both be very happy."

Slotter, now 91, and his wife live with their daughter, Mildred, in Boyertown, about 25 miles north of Philadelphia.

Six of the Slotters' seven children are still living. There are also 17 grandchildren, 36 great grandchildren, and 8 great great grandchildren.

Small A-Reactor Ready For Schools

CANOGA PARK, Calif. (AP) — Atomics International says it has designed a miniature low cost atomic energy reactor to fit into any school laboratory.

The firm, a division of North American Aviation, Inc., said Wednesday the reactor is contained in a tank only eight feet high and eight feet in diameter and can be installed in any existing laboratory building without any special facilities.

The reactor, whch costs $55,000, will permit a wide range of research and training in the nuclear field, the company said.

National Guard Bares Bayonets To Quell Crowd

Troops Form Escort For 9 Negro Youths Into Sturgis School

STURGIS, Ky. (AP) — An angry, yelling mob of about 500 persons staged a near-riot here today as armed National Guard troops escorted nine Negro youths into the previously all-white Sturgis High School.

The troops, armed with machine guns and carbines, got the youths through the yelling, fist-swinging crowd after a five minute struggle. Five unidentified men were seized by the troops, which moved into this western Kentucky town of 5,000 Wednesday night.

The troops, after taking the Negro youths into the school approximately a half hour before classes were to open, used their bayonets to drive the crowd away from the school building.

Gov. A. B. Chandler ordered four Guard units into Sturgis only a few hours after President Eisenhower in Washington urged that integration problems be solved without violence.

About 210 guardsmen and four tanks camped overnight on the grounds of Sturgis High School. Maj. Gen. J. J. B. Williams said "we're well prepared for any eventuality."

* * *

AS THE NEGRO youths left their homes about a mile from this mining and farming town's only high school, crowds began to gather along the way engaging in name-calling as the youths walked down the street.

By the time they had reached the school's vicinity, the crowd had reached nearly 500, many yelling "Don't let those niggers in our school."

When several in the crowd tried to grab the youths, National Guardsmen stepped in. Fists began to fly but the troops pushed their way through and after driving the crowd back across the street remained with fixed bayonets around the school.

A solid line of Guardsmen was strung along the block from one end to the other as school buses began to arrive with white children.

As the white children alighted from the buses, the crowd began to chant "Don't go into that nigger loving school." The crowd kept up the chant as the assembly bell sounded inside the school.

A few minutes later, some chil-

Today's World News In Brief

Red Planet Mars 'Close' To Earth

NEW YORK (AP)—Tonight at 11 o'clock (EST), the red planet Mars gets more "neighborly" than it has been for 32 years.

The intriguing planet, only half as big as the earth, wheels into view astronomically only 35,163,-000 miles away—the closest since 1924.

Mars rises in the southeast and sets in the southwest. It will be closest around 11 o'clock but will be visible all of the evening hours.

The planet shines red because more than half its surface seemingly is covered with orange-red desert, low mountains, and barren landscape swept by hot winds.

The controversial "canals" will come in for close attention. Some claim to have seen such waterways, but others note that photographs fail to show them clearly.

Mars' comparative proximity revives speculation concerning possible existence of people on the planet.

That speculation reverts to the canal theory, envisioning great irrigation projects to provide the planet with plant life.

Mars' moisture is mighty sparse, and is thought to derive only from the seasonal melting of its polar ice caps. And even at that, some scientists say, all the water on the planet would scarcely fill Lake Erie.

Blue - green areas seen from earth were once thought to be "seas." Now they are generally considered to be lichen-like vegetation. In 1954, an area formerly seen only as bright red "desert" showed up green. Astronomers are anxious to know how that section will look tonight.

Scientists say that if "beings" do exist on Mars they'll have to be different from us, because the planet's atmosphere is said to be almost devoid of oxygen and more dependent on nitrogen.

CHICAGO (AP) — The cooler air over the Great Lakes region had moved southward today as far as Texas, Oklahoma and northern New Mexico.

The greatest temperature drops occurred through the middle Mississippi River Valley and southwest. The reading at Kansas City dropped from 82 late Tuesday night to 58 about 24 hours later.

Meanwhile southerly winds brought warmer weather into the Great Lakes area and eastward.

Boys Discover Body Floating In Small Lake

New England Police Mum On Clues Leading To Snatcher Of Girl

HAMDEN, Conn. (AP) — The body of kidnaped 6-weeks-old Cynthia Ruotolo was recovered from a lake here today, the medical examiner reported.

Dr. Sterling Taylor came to newsmen held in a roped off area 100 yards from the shore of Lake Whitney and said the identification was definite.

Cynthia was taken from her carriage in the foyer of a Sears Roebuck store two miles from the lake Saturday. Her mother was shopping inside.

The recovery came only a brief time after a new radio appeal was made for the abductor to return the baby safely. The child's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Ruotolo, had all but given up on appeals to the kidnaper Tuesday.

There was no word from police whether the discovery of the body brought with it any clues as to the kidnaper.

The child's body was found floating on the lake and was recovered by the Hamden Fire Department.

Mr. and Mrs. Ruotolo were whisked away in a police car to an unknown destination.

Police converged on the scene shortly after noon. They roped off the lake shore.

* * *

THE SITE IS not far from a heavy residential area. The body was found near a bridge crossing the lake. The bridge is seldom used.

From the department store to the lake, it would have been possible for the kidnaper to remain under cover of a wooded area.

Two boys walking along the lake, which serves New Haven as a reservoir, saw the body and called police.

It was the second fatal kidnaping in the eastern U. S. in recent weeks.

On July 4, Peter Weinberger, 33 days old, was snatched from a patio at the rear of his home on Long Island. His body later was found in a pile of brush.

Angelo LaMarca, 31, pleaded innocent by reason of insanity at a hearing on the Weinberger case Wednesday. His trial will start Oct. 1 in Mineola, N. Y.

LaMarca demanded ransom in the Weinberger kidnaping, but the person who took the Ruotolo infant is not known to have contacted the parents.

Police at one time said they believed the Ruotolo kidnaper was a woman who was "baby hungry."

Host Attacked, 2 Men Slain

YOUNGSTOWN (AP) — Two men were shot to death today when they attacked their host, who tried to prevent them from fighting, police reported.

They were identified as Eugene Bowen, 35, and Mack Turner, 45, both of Youngstown.

The shooting took place in the home of Grady Ellison, 34.

Ellison, who police said admitted the shooting, and his wife, Irene, 30, were held without charge pending investigation.

Officers said Ellison, Bowen and Turner have police records here.

Ohio Idle Pay List Still Shrinking

COLUMBUS (AP)—The number of claimants for unemployment compensation in Ohio dropped every week from Aug. 4 through Sept. 1.

The Bureau of Unemployment Compensation reported 6,027 new claims the week ending Sept. 1, compared with 7,532 for the week ending Aug. 1. The number of continuing claims was 41,814 on Sept. 1, compared with 46,139 on Aug. 11.

Important Development Seen In Vital Suez Canal Parley

CAIRO, Egypt (AP)—An important new development in the talks between the five-nation Suez Canal Committee and President Nasser caused the committee to take time out today for a careful look.

A source close to the committee headed by Australian Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies disclosed the development, but no hint of its nature could be obtained from either side.

It was reported to be of such importance, however, that the nzies group is giving it thorough consideration. No time was set for the committee's fifth meeting with Nasser. There was speculation it would be tonight.

A committee spokesman said the development did not represent a stalemate in the talks which opened Monday, and added: "I am optimistic that a compromise will be found."

He said no time was set for the next meeting "because the mission is looking into various detailed aspects of things which President Nasser has said so far."

* * *

THE COMMITTEE came here with a proposal for international control of the key Middle East waterway backed by 18 of the 22 nations attending the recent London conference on the canal controversy. The conference was called after Nasser announced July 26 that Egypt had nationalized the canal. Nasser has maintained that Egypt has the right of sole control over the canal and that he will not accept any proposal for international control.

Sources close to the Menzies committee and the Egyptian government denied that Nasser had rejected categorically the international control proposal put forward at the London parley by Secretary of State Dulles. They said Nasser had presented his viewpoint, which differed from the Dulles proposal.

"But Nasser presented his viewpoint in a positive and not in a negatve manner," an Egyptan source said. "He has always said he would not accept the Dulles plan, but he still has not slammed the door by giving a purely negative reply."

Egyptian informants also denied Nasser has presented a formal counterproposal in the talks here.

"From a study of his expressed viewpoint," one source said, "a new proposal could take shape."

A spokesman for the Menzies Committee said the group likely will remain in Cairo until Saturday. He said there had been no change in the atmosphere of the talks and, referring to the last meeting, added: "There were no signs of discontent. No hostility. The atmosphere is good."

Error By Train Crewman Blamed For Rail Accident

SPRINGER, N. M. (AP)—A train crewman was to be queried today at an inquest in Springer into the crash of a railway streamliner and a sidelined mail train.

Twenty persons were killed and 35 were injured when the Santa Fe Chief slammed head-on into the waiting mail train in the pre-dawn hours Wednesday.

Miraculously, the 312 passengers aboard the Chief escaped death.

A railway official said a Santa Fe workman threw a switch, turning the 13-car Chief onto a bypass where it smashed into the mail train which was waiting for it to pass. The wreck was five miles south of here on rolling rangeland.

The railway spokesman, J. P. Reinhold, vice president in charge of public relations, said the Chief was traveling 40 to 45 m.p.h. when it rammed the mail train at 3 a. m. The debris was cleared about 14 hours later just after the body of the 20th victim was found.

* * *

OFFICIALS identified the last victim as brakeman Lawrence McCormick, Raton, N. M., and said the body was found in the wreckage of a dormitory car on the Chief, where the victim was riding from Raton to Albuquerque.

The other dead also were railway workmen, either trainmen or dining car employes. Most were sleeping in the dormitory car.

Officials said the mail train fireman became confused and set the switch the wrong way after his train had pulled off the main line to let the Chief pass.

Reinhold said the fireman committed an "error in judgment," and the mistake was "just one of those things that is hard to figure out. He just does not know why he did it."

The official identified the fireman as P. C. Caldarelli of Raton, who is still in a state of shock.

Reached by telephone at his Raton home, Caldarelli was asked how the error happened.

He answered, "I don't know. It was a great shock. They were my friends. I don't feel good."

He said he had been in bed all day after the accident and was given a sedative.

John B. Curtis, Associated Press writer at the scene, described the scrambled cars as "twisted and standing on end—a fantastic accordion."

THE COMMITTEE came here with a proposal for international control of the key Middle East waterway backed by 18 of the 22 nations attending the recent London conference on the canal controversy. The conference was called after Nasser announced July 26 that Egypt had nationalized the canal. Nasser has maintained that Egypt has the right of sole control over the canal and that he will not accept any proposal for international control.

Sources close to the Menzies committee and the Egyptian government denied that Nasser had rejected categorically the international control proposal put forward at the London parley by Secretary of State Dulles. They said Nasser had presented his viewpoint, which differed from the Dulles proposal.

"But Nasser presented his viewpoint in a positive and not in a negatve manner," an Egyptan source said. "He has always said he would not accept the Dulles plan, but he still has not slammed the door by giving a purely negative reply."

Egyptian informants also denied Nasser has presented a formal counterproposal in the talks here.

"From a study of his expressed viewpoint," one source said, "a new proposal could take shape."

A spokesman for the Menzies Committee said the group likely will remain in Cairo until Saturday. He said there had been no change in the atmosphere of the talks and, referring to the last meeting, added: "There were no signs of discontent. No hostility. The atmosphere is good."

National Guard Bares Bayonets To Quell Crowd

Troops Form Escort For 9 Negro Youths Into Sturgis School

STURGIS, Ky. (AP) — An angry, yelling mob of about 500 persons staged a near-riot here today as armed National Guard troops escorted nine Negro youths into the previously all-white Sturgis High School.

The troops, armed with machine guns and carbines, got the youths through the yelling, fist-swinging crowd after a five minute struggle. Five unidentified men were seized by the troops, which moved into this western Kentucky town of 5,000 Wednesday night.

The troops, after taking the Negro youths into the school approximately a half hour before classes were to open, used their bayonets to drive the crowd away from the school building.

Gov. A. B. Chandler ordered four Guard units into Sturgis only a few hours after President Eisenhower in Washington urged that integration problems be solved without violence.

About 210 guardsmen and four tanks camped overnight on the grounds of Sturgis High School. Maj. Gen. J. J. B. Williams said "we're well prepared for any eventuality."

* * *

AS THE NEGRO youths left their homes about a mile from this mining and farming town's only high school, crowds began to gather along the way engaging in name-calling as the youths walked down the street.

By the time they had reached the school's vicinity, the crowd had reached nearly 500, many yelling "Don't let those niggers in our school."

When several in the crowd tried to grab the youths, National Guardsmen stepped in. Fists began to fly but the troops pushed their way through and after driving the crowd back across the street remained with fixed bayonets around the school.

A solid line of Guardsmen was strung along the block from one end to the other as school buses began to arrive with white children.

As the white children alighted from the buses, the crowd began to chant "Don't go into that nigger loving school." The crowd kept up the chant as the assembly bell sounded inside the school.

A few minutes later, some chil-

Today's World News In Brief

Red Planet Mars 'Close' To Earth

NEW YORK (AP)—Tonight at 11 o'clock (EST), the red planet Mars gets more "neighborly" than it has been for 32 years.

The intriguing planet, only half as big as the earth, wheels into view astronomically only 35,163,000 miles away—the closest since 1924.

Mars rises in the southeast and sets in the southwest. It will be closest around 11 o'clock but will be visible all of the evening hours.

The planet shines red because more than half its surface seemingly is covered with orange-red desert, low mountains, and barren landscape swept by hot winds.

The controversial "canals" will come in for close attention. Some claim to have seen such waterways, but others note that photographs fail to show them clearly.

Mars' comparative proximity revives speculation concerning possible existence of people on the planet.

That speculation reverts to the canal theory, envisioning great irrigation projects to provide the planet with plant life.

Mars' moisture is mighty sparse, and is thought to derive only from the seasonal melting of its polar ice caps. And even at that, some scientists say, all the water on the planet would scarcely fill Lake Erie.

Blue - green areas seen from earth were once thought to be "seas." Now they are generally considered to be lichen-like vegetation. In 1954, an area formerly seen only as bright red "desert" showed up green. Astronomers are anxious to know how that section will look tonight.

Scientists say that if "beings" do exist on Mars they'll have to be different from us, because the planet's atmosphere is said to be almost devoid of oxygen and more dependent on nitrogen.

CHICAGO (AP) — The cooler air over the Great Lakes region had moved southward today as far as Texas, Oklahoma and northern New Mexico.

The greatest temperature drops occurred through the middle Mississippi River Valley and southwest. The reading at Kansas City dropped from 82 late Tuesday night to 58 about 24 hours later.

Meanwhile southerly winds brought warmer weather into the Great Lakes area and eastward.

Error By Train Crewman Blamed For Rail Accident

SPRINGER, N. M. (AP)—A train crewman was to be queried today at an inquest in Springer into the crash of a railway streamliner and a sidelined mail train.

Twenty persons were killed and 35 were injured when the Santa Fe Chief slammed head-on into the waiting mail train in the pre-dawn hours Wednesday.

Miraculously, the 312 passengers aboard the Chief escaped death.

A railway official said a Santa Fe workman threw a switch, turning the 13-car Chief onto a bypass where it smashed into the mail train which was waiting for it to pass. The wreck was five miles south of here on rolling rangeland.

The railway spokesman, J. P. Reinhold, vice president in charge of public relations, said the Chief was traveling 40 to 45 m.p.h. when it rammed the mail train at 3 a. m. The debris was cleared about 14 hours later just after the body of the 20th victim was found.

* * *

OFFICIALS identified the last victim as brakeman Lawrence McCormick, Raton, N. M., and said the body was found in the wreckage of a dormitory car on the Chief, where the victim was riding from Raton to Albuquerque.

The other dead also were railway workmen, either trainmen or dining car employes. Most were sleeping in the dormitory car.

Officials said the mail train fireman became confused and set the switch the wrong way after his train had pulled off the main line to let the Chief pass.

Reinhold said the fireman committed an "error in judgment," and the mistake was "just one of those things that is hard to figure out. He just does not know why he did it."

The official identified the fireman as P. C. Caldarelli of Raton, who is still in a state of shock.

Reached by telephone at his Raton home, Caldarelli was asked how the error happened.

He answered, "I don't know. It was a great shock. They were my friends. I don't feel good."

He said he had been in bed all day after the accident and was given a sedative.

John B. Curtis, Associated Press writer at the scene, described the scrambled cars as "twisted and standing on end—a fantastic accordion."

Boys Discover Body Floating In Small Lake

New England Police Mum On Clues Leading To Snatcher Of Girl

HAMDEN, Conn. (AP) — The body of kidnaped 6-weeks-old Cynthia Ruotolo was recovered from a lake here today, the medical examiner reported.

Dr. Sterling Taylor came to newsmen held in a roped off area 100 yards from the shore of Lake Whitney and said the identification was definite.

Cynthia was taken from her carriage in the foyer of a Sears Roebuck store two miles from the lake Saturday. Her mother was shopping inside.

The recovery came only a brief time after a new radio appeal was made for the abductor to return the baby safely. The child's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Ruotolo, had all but given up on appeals to the kidnaper Tuesday.

There was no word from police whether the discovery of the body brought with it any clues as to the kidnaper.

The child's body was found floating on the lake and was recovered by the Hamden Fire Department.

Mr. and Mrs. Ruotolo were whisked away in a police car to an unknown destination.

Police converged on the scene shortly after noon. They roped off the lake shore.

* * *

THE SITE IS not far from a heavy residential area. The body was found near a bridge crossing the lake. The bridge is seldom used.

From the department store to the lake, it would have been possible for the kidnaper to remain under cover of a wooded area.

Two boys walking along the lake, which serves New Haven as a reservoir, saw the body and called police.

It was the second fatal kidnaping in the eastern U. S. in recent weeks.

On July 4, Peter Weinberger, 33 days old, was snatched from a patio at the rear of his home on Long Island. His body later was found in a pile of brush.

Angelo LaMarca, 31, pleaded innocent by reason of insanity at a hearing on the Weinberger case Wednesday. His trial will start Oct. 1 in Mineola, N. Y.

LaMarca demanded ransom in the Weinberger kidnaping, but the person who took the Ruotolo infant is not known to have contacted the parents.

Police at one time said they believed the Ruotolo kidnaper was a woman who was "baby hungry."

Dr. Schwine has explained to me that in the Inventing Game it's dog eat dog. That's why I'm always on the alert for new ideas that I can utilize (swipe). During the past year I've been responsible for giving the S&K Laboratories a number of sure fire money-makers. Legion Hears Nixon On Eve Of Dad's Rites

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Vice President Nixon said today "the entire problem of communism, foreign and domestic, is too important for political sniping."

He told the American Legion National Convention that in this problem "is literally the question of America's security and our national survival."

He warned against being beguiled by the "new look" of peace in Soviet foreign policy.

"The label differs in various countries but the poison is just the same," Nixon said. "Regardless of his nationality, the Communist has one loyalty and one only—to the ruthless power-hungry system that has enslaved amost half the world."

He listed what he called 10 "complete about-faces in Communist policy" since 1918. This record he said, explains why the United States had demanded actions, not words, as guarantees of good faith from the Communists.

"I am stating our position strongly because there are well-intentioned but misguided people here and elsewhere who contend that our line toward the Communists is too hard, and that we should soften it in view of their change attitude," Nixon said.

Nixon, saddened by the death of his father, Frank A. Nixon, 77, in Whittier Tuesday, came here to speak as arrangements were being made for the funeral Friday.

11 Marines Drown In Freak Mishap

NAHA, Okinawa (AP)—Eleven U.S. Marines drowned off the north shore of Okinawa Wednesday while swimming during a break in field exercises.

The men were knocked off their feet by a strong undercurrent which was believed due to typhoon conditions, it was said.

Brig. Gen. Victor H. Krulak, commander of the 3rd Marine Division, said a freak ocean current caused the drownings.

At least 12 other Marines were saved by other Leathernecks.

An extensive land and sea search was underway for the bodies of the 11 who drowned. All available planes were searching the sea within five miles of shore and foot patrols combed the shore.

The Marine Corps said that the Marines took a break from their field problem on the coast of Okinawa and went for a swim in apparently calm water.

"Before they got waist deep, the men were in trouble," an eye-witness was quoted. "They were knocked from their feet by a vicious undercurrent."

U.S. Scandal Sheet Chief's Shooting Eyed

CIUDAD TRUJILLO, Dominican Republic (AP)—Witnesses agreed today there was a loud quarrel over a story in Confidential magazine just before the publisher, Robert Harrison, 50, was shot.

But police waited to get Harrison's own story before deciding whether to prosecute Richard Weldy, 35, jungle trapper and guide. The New York publisher was in a hospital here suffering from exhaustion, exposure and a slight flesh wound in the left arm.

Weldy was under arrest in this city on a holding charge. He acknowledged to reporters at police headquarters Wednesday he had shot Harrison Tuesday in woods where the publisher was hunting in the Jarabacoa Mountain district about 70 miles northwest of here. But he said the shooting was an accident.

He said his rifle fell and went off as the two were having a "big argument" over a story in Harrison's magazine. The story told how Weldy introduced Peruvian actress Pilar Palette, then his wife, to Hollywood star John Wayne in Peru in 1952. She later became Mrs. Wayne.

"I never had any intention of hurting Harrison," he declared, "although I was sore because of the story in the magazine."

He said he could have killed Harrison if he had wanted to because he is a good shot. But he said if he had meant to attack him, he would have used his fists.

U.S. Agency Eyes Estate Of Ohio Cop

WASHINGTON (AP) — Youngstown, Ohio, policeman Charles A. Willis saved $60,000 before he died at 61 last March. Now the Internal Revenue Service wants $56,429.76 in income taxes and penalties.

This was disclosed today in a petition filed in U. S. Tax Court by Willis' sister, Mrs. Lucile Fuller of Cleveland. The petition says Willis gave her the $60,000 and denies that any taxes or penalties are due.

In explanation of how Willis managed to save the money, Mrs. Fuller said that her brother, in addition to being a policeman for more than 20 years, bought and sold stocks under an assumed name—Charles A. Sanford.

Using the alias Sanford, her petition said, her brother "maintained a fairly substantial brokerage account with Butler-Wick Co. in Youngstown" and made "moderate profits during those years."

But the Internal Revenue Service says Willis didn't file a return for 1955. It says he earned only $2,320.17 as a policeman in 1955 but in addition had $60,000 from "miscellaneous sources."

Binkley's car went off the road into a ditch and struck a telephone pole. The front end and right side of the car were heavily damaged.

Deputy Sheriff Bob Hoover said the local man's car knocked down three wooden fence posts and 60 feet of wire.

CD Mobile Unit To Visit City

Civil Defense Director Bernard Tait announced today that Circleville—during the Jubilee Pumpkin Show this Fall—will be the control point for all of Ohio's Civil Defense activities.

Tait said he has arranged to have the state's CD mobile control center brought here and parked in front of the courthouse during the big anniversary fiesta.

The mobile unit, costing about $60,000, is completely equipped with all modern facilities for communicating with the various CD branches. Its work in this respect will be demonstrated here during the Pumpkin Show, Tait said.

"What it means," he added, "is that Circleville will be the heart of the state's Civil Defense system during the show. Everything is controlled through the mobile unit."

Mitchell Denies Pressure In Strike

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell denies he blackjacked industry to bring about a settlement of the steel strike last summer.

The question developed from a speech by Albert J. Hayes, Machinists' International president, who said the Washington Evening Star last August asserted Mitchell had threatened Taft-Hartley action and a mediation board "stacked" in favor of labor to bring the steel companies to a settlement. If that is true, he added, Mitchell was guilty of blackjacking industry into an involuntary settlement.

Mayor Cancels Extra Job Order

CLEVELAND (AP) — Lakewood Mayor Frank P. Celeste Wednesday dropped his order that the suburb's police and firemen could not hold outside jobs.

The question came up a week ago when Celeste turned down a patrolman's request to be permitted to work in a theater in his off hours. But when other policemen working two jobs complained, Celeste withdrew it.

"Let's face it," he said. "Under civil service the men are not paid anywhere near what they could get in private industry and they do twice as much."

Jail's Inmates Share Facilities With 'Visitors'

The Pickaway County jail was a little crowded today following the transfer of 17 prisoners from Ross County to the local bastille. The emergency shift of prisoners came as the result of last night's $100,000 fire in a church located near the county jail in Chillicothe.

According to reports received here, flames from the burning church caused approximately $1,000 damage to the nearby jail building.

All 49 prisoners being held there were removed to surrounding counties for safekeeping. None of the jailed men was injured in the blaze.

The Pickaway County Sheriff's office sent three cars to the scene to transport prisoners here. Deputies Dwight Radcliff, Bob Hoover and Charles Felkey all answered the emergency alarm from the Ross County Sheriff's Department.

* * *

CRUISERS from Franklin, Fairfield and Fayette Counties also were at the scene to give assistance.

The Chillicothe church was in the process of being remodeled and repaired. Cause of the fire has not been determined.

Appeals Panel OKs Ouster Of Sheriff Trago

JACKSON (AP)—The Fourth District Court of Appeals has upheld the appointment of Jack Evans as Jackson County sheriff.

Evans was appointed early in December to succeed David L. Trago, ousted from office. Attorneys for Trago contested the appointment on grounds Trago was still legally sheriff, although he was then a prisoner in jail.

The court ruling Wednesday said in substance Evans' appointment is valid and removal of Trago made according to law.

Trago, jailed for a year in Gallia County after being convicted on a morals charge, was released last week. While in jail, Trago won the Democratic nomination for sheriff, and now is back in Jackson campaigning for election. He will oppose Evans, a Republican, in November.

The crowd remained milling around the school approximately 45 minutes after the Negro youths had entered. They continued heckling the troops.

Legion Hears Nixon On Eve Of Dad's Rites

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Vice President Nixon said today "the entire problem of communism, foreign and domestic, is too important for political sniping."

He told the American Legion National Convention that in this problem "is literally the question of America's security and our national survival."

He warned against being beguiled by the "new look" of peace in Soviet foreign policy.

"The label differs in various countries but the poison is just the same," Nixon said. "Regardless of his nationality, the Communist has one loyalty and one only—to the ruthless power-hungry system that has enslaved almost half the world."

He listed what he called 10 "complete about-faces in Communist policy" since 1918. This record he said, explains why the United States had demanded actions, not words, as guarantees of good faith from the Communists.

"I am stating our position strongly because there are well-intentioned but misguided people here and elsewhere who contend that our line toward the Communists is too hard, and that we should soften it in view of their change attitude," Nixon said.

Nixon, saddened by the death of his father, Frank A. Nixon, 77, in Whittier Tuesday, came here to speak as arrangements were being made for the funeral Friday.

Farm Bureau Chief Decries 'Promises'

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The president of the American Farm Bureau Federation said today farm problems cannot be solved by "political promises."

President Charles B. Shuman said the federation was "disappointed" in the 1956 Democratic platform. And he added that the Republican platform was thought to be better, "but it, too, endorses several unworkable ideas."

LACON, Ill. (AP)—A farmer returned home from a trip Wednesday night and found his wife dead in a pig pen, her clothing in shreds and her body torn and chewed by pigs.

She was Mrs. Milton Seward, 57. Her husband said she suffered from diabetes and might have collapsed in the pig pen. About 15 pigs were kept in the pen at the Seward farm.

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Polish Premier Josef Cyrankiewicz says people in his country no longer trust the government.

He told Parliament in a speech reported by Warsaw radio, that shortages must be eliminated and the standard of living raised to pull Poland out of "a difficult economic situation."

VIENNA (AP) — Poland alleged today that balloons launched in West Germany by the American privately financed Free Europe Organization caused the crash of a Polish jet fighter Aug. 3 that killed two airmen.

ISLE OF ISCHIA, Italy (AP)—Fifty prisoners went into the third day of a hunger strike today demanding among other things more music on the prison radio system.

TOKYO (AP) — Typhoon Emma, carrying winds up to 144 m.p.h. was spotted 518 miles southeast of the American fortress of Okinawa today. It was too early to tell whether it would hit the island.

11 Marines Drown In Freak Mishap

NAHA, Okinawa (AP)—Eleven U.S. Marines drowned off the north shore of Okinawa Wednesday while swimming during a break in field exercises.

The men were knocked off their feet by a strong undercurrent which was believed due to typhoon conditions, it was said.

Brig. Gen. Victor H. Krulak, commander of the 3rd Marine Division, said a freak ocean current caused the drownings.

At least 12 other Marines were saved by other Leathernecks.

An extensive land and sea search was underway for the bodies of the 11 who drowned. All available planes were searching the sea within five miles of shore and foot patrols combed the shore.

The Marine Corps said that the Marines took a break from their field problem on the coast of Okinawa and went for a swim in apparently calm water.

"Before they got waist deep, the men were in trouble," an eye-witness was quoted. "They were knocked from their feet by a vicious undercurrent."

U.S. Polio Total Continues To Drop

WASHINGTON (AP)— The states listed 887 new polio cases last week. This was 56 fewer than in the week ended Aug. 25, which may turn out to have been the peak 1956 week with 943 casse.

For this polio disease year which started April 1 there were 7,848 cases through Sept. 1, compared with 15,128 in the comparable 1955 span. The total for the 1956 calendar year was 8,915 compared with 16,191 in 1955 on the corresponding date.

U.S. Scandal Sheet Chief's Shooting Eyed

CIUDAD TRUJILLO, Dominican Republic (AP)—Witnesses agreed today there was a loud quarrel over a story in Confidential magazine just before the publisher, Robert Harrison, 50, was shot.

But police waited to get Harrison's own story before deciding whether to prosecute Richard Weldy, 35, jungle trapper and guide. The New York publisher was in a hospital here suffering from exhaustion, exposure and a slight flesh wound in the left arm.

Weldy was under arrest in this city on a holding charge. He acknowledged to reporters at police headquarters Wednesday he had shot Harrison Tuesday in woods where the publisher was hunting in the Jarabacoa Mountain district about 70 miles northwest of here. But he said the shooting was an accident.

He said his rifle fell and went off as the two were having a "big argument" over a story in Harrison's magazine. The story told how Weldy introduced Peruvian actress Pilar Palette, then his wife, to Hollywood star John Wayne in Peru in 1952. She later became Mrs. Wayne.

"I never had any intention of hurting Harrison," he declared, "although I was sore because of the story in the magazine."

He said he could have killed Harrison if he had wanted to because he is a good shot. But he said if he had meant to attack him, he would have used his fists.

U.S. Agency Eyes Estate Of Ohio Cop

WASHINGTON (AP) — Youngstown, Ohio, policeman Charles A. Willis saved $60,000 before he died at 61 last March. Now the Internal Revenue Service wants $56,429.76 in income taxes and penalties.

This was disclosed today in a petition filed in U. S. Tax Court by Willis' sister, Mrs. Lucile Fuller of Cleveland. The petition says Willis gave her the $60,000 and denies that any taxes or penalties are due.

In explanation of how Willis managed to save the money, Mrs. Fuller said that her brother, in addition to being a policeman for more than 20 years, bought and sold stocks under an assumed name—Charles A. Sanford.

Using the alias Sanford, her petition said, her brother "maintained a fairly substantial brokerage account with Butler-Wick Co. in Youngstown" and made "moderate profits during those years."

But the Internal Revenue Service says Willis didn't file a return for 1955. It says he earned only $2,320.17 as a policeman in 1955 but in addition had $60,000 from "miscellaneous sources."

The injured man was taken to Berger Hospital for treatment.

Binkley's car went off the road into a ditch and struck a telephone pole. The front end and right side of the car were heavily damaged.

Deputy Sheriff Bob Hoover said the local man's car knocked down three wooden fence posts and 60 feet of wire.

CD Mobile Unit To Visit City

Civil Defense Director Bernard Tait announced today that Circleville—during the Jubilee Pumpkin Show this Fall—will be the control point for all of Ohio's Civil Defense activities.

Tait said he has arranged to have the state's CD mobile control center brought here and parked in front of the courthouse during the big anniversary fiesta.

The mobile unit, costing about $60,000, is completely equipped with all modern facilities for communicating with the various CD branches. Its work in this respect will be demonstrated here during the Pumpkin Show, Tait said.

"What it means," he added, "is that Circleville will be the heart of the state's Civil Defense system during the show. Everything is controlled through the mobile unit."

Mitchell Denies Pressure In Strike

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell denies he blackjacked industry to bring about a settlement of the steel strike last summer.

The question developed from a speech by Albert J. Hayes, Machinists' International president, who said the Washington Evening Star last August asserted Mitchell had threatened Taft-Hartley action and a mediation board "stacked" in favor of labor to bring the steel companies to a settlement. If that is true, he added, Mitchell was guilty of blackjacking industry into an involuntary settlement.

Mayor Cancels Extra Job Order

CLEVELAND (AP) — Lakewood Mayor Frank P. Celeste Wednesday dropped his order that the suburb's police and firemen could not hold outside jobs.

The question came up a week ago when Celeste turned down a patrolman's request to be permitted to work in a theater in his off hours. But when other policemen working two jobs complained, Celeste withdrew it.

"Let's face it," he said. "Under civil service the men are not paid anywhere near what they could get in private industry and they do twice as much."

Jail's Inmates Share Facilities With 'Visitors'

The Pickaway County jail was a little crowded today following the transfer of 17 prisoners from Ross County to the local bastille. The emergency shift of prisoners came as the result of last night's $100,000 fire in a church located near the county jail in Chillicothe.

According to reports received here, flames from the burning church caused approximately $1,000 damage to the nearby jail building.

All 49 prisoners being held there were removed to surrounding counties for safekeeping. None of the jailed men was injured in the blaze.

The Pickaway County Sheriff's office sent three cars to the scene to transport prisoners here. Deputies Dwight Radcliff, Bob Hoover and Charles Felkey all answered the emergency alarm from the Ross County Sheriff's Department.

CRUISERS from Franklin, Fairfield and Fayette Counties also were at the scene to give assistance.

The Chillicothe church was in the process of being remodeled and repaired. Cause of the fire has not been determined.

Appeals Panel OKs Ouster Of Sheriff Trago

JACKSON (AP)—The Fourth District Court of Appeals has upheld the appointment of Jack Evans as Jackson County sheriff.

Evans was appointed early in December to succeed David L. Trago, ousted from office. Attorneys for Trago contested the appointment on grounds Trago was still legally sheriff, although he was then a prisoner in jail.

The court ruling Wednesday said in substance Evans' appointment is valid and removal of Trago made according to law.

Trago, jailed for a year in Gallia County after being convicted on a morals charge, was released last week. While in jail, Trago won the Democratic nomination for sheriff, and now is back in Jackson campaigning for election. He will oppose Evans, a Republican, in November.

"Mary Haworth's Mail"

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a boy 14 and I need your help badly. My family recently moved to this new neighborhood, and there are lots of children here, many of them about my age.

At first I thought it was going to be lots of fun, meeting new people and making new friends; but now I see that it is not any fun at all. It is pretty lonely.

Of all the children my age around here, none is ever home. All are working at something, such as cutting grass; and some even work as caddies at the local golf course, to make money.

When I first met the kids in this neighborhood, they all asked me to come and work with them; but I said "no," as I had never cut grass for anybody in my whole life. After this, things got worse; and, just because I have nothing to do, they started hating me, talking behind my back, calling me "lazy" and things like that.

Wanting to make things better, I started to work at the golf course. But I got fired after three days, and now all the neighborhood kids are mad at me, because I can't hold a job.

C. B.

DEAR C. B.: It is axiomatic that "He who would have friends must show himself friendly." In other words, the way to win friends is to be a friend. And what is a friend?

A friend, says Webster's Dictionary, is one attached to another by esteem, respect and affection. Also, a friend is "one not hostile; not a foe." A friend is a loyal booster.

The friendly soul goes out of his way to find common interests with other persons on first meeting, and in the first rounds of getting acquainted.

And it appears that the kids in your new neighborhood were friendly in their first encounters with you. They offered to take you in, when they invited you to share the work they do—since this is the way they spend their time. But you struck an attitude of being different and "out of their class" when you said "No"—in a prideful spirit of having no need to work, I gather.

Unfortunately you "have nothing to do," you say, which means you aren't a live wire. You don't cut any ice, so the kids look down on you. The basic remedy is to get busy and build up a program of "doing" that appeals to you, and leads to skills and enthusiasms shared by others. Then you'll find friends falling in step with you; maybe not at once, but gradually. For firsthand help, talk things over with a scout leader or YMCA counsellor, or similar guide to youth in your city.

'Nice Old Man' Kills Couple, Then Himself

CLEVELAND (AP)—A "nice old man" got up early Wednesday, shot and killed his daughter, her husband and himself—and nobody knows why.

"It seems he just went berserk," said Coroner Samuel R. Gerber.

Police reconstructed the tragedy this way:

Anthony Valenti, 82, a little, gray retired carpenter, lived with his daughter and her husband in a cottage in suburban South Euclid.

For the last several days, neighbors overheard arguments between Valenti and his son-in-law over the laying of a cement driveway.

Wednesday the old man got up before 7 a.m., dressed and got a loaded revolver.

He went into the kitchen where his son-in-law, Charles Tranchita, 59, dressed for his job as a machinist, was turning on a radio on a wall shelf.

Valenti shot him in the back and Tranchita fell dead, tearing a wire from the radio as he fell backwards.

The old man then went into a bedroom and shot his daughter, Angela Tranchita, 57. Her body, dressed in night clothes, was found at the foot of her bed, shot twice in the side.

Then Valenti went into the living room and shot himself in the head.

"He was a nice old man," said a neighbor, Joseph C. Fasciano. "I talked to him many a time out in the back yard."

Ike Sees Need To 'Teach' Solons

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower has been quoted by a White House visitor as saying "we need a professor in Congress to teach those congressmen something."

The remark was attributed to the President by William B. Prendergast of Bay Ridge, Md.

Prendergast said Eisenhower asked him about his occupation. Prendergast is a civilian professor of government at the U. S. Naval Academy, Annapolis.

It was at that point, Prendergast added, that Eisenhower declared "We need a professor in Congress to teach those congressmen something."

When states are added to the Union, additional stars are affixed only on the following July 4.

Champion Steer Brings High Price

DAYTON (AP)—Like a lot of other things, the price of champion steers is on the upgrade.

The 1,000-pound grand champion of the Montgomery County Fair, a black Angus owned by Miss Diora Stafford, 16, of New Lebanon, sold for $2.65 a pound. That was 55 cents a pound higher than the 1955 grand champion brought. And the 1955 price of $2.10 was a county fair record.

Miss Stafford, a 4-H Club member, exhibited the best in a field of 141 steers.

TROY (AP)—One man was electrocuted and another was burned critically Wednesday when a pipe they were carrying came in contact with a 4,000-volt electric power line.

Charles J. Johnston, 43, died in Stouder Memorial Hospital here. Leslie Kindell, 53, was hospitalized in critical condition.

Johnston, a foreman, and Kindell were working at the Burton Hilltop Nursery at nearby Casstown, repairing a water pump, when the accident occurred.

33-County Area To Ask Farm Aid

COLUMBUS (AP)—Gov. Frank J. Lausche will be requested to seek federal aid for farmers in a 33-county eastern Ohio area.

State Agriculture Director A. L. Sorensen said that he will send such a recommendation to the governor this week.

He said federal approval will make farmers eligible for reduced rates on Farmers Home Administration loans and commercial grain purchases.

Counties included in the area are all those north and east of Erie, Huron, Crawford, Morrow, Licking, Muskingum, Morgan, Noble and Monroe.

Ohioan Asks Force In Sale Of Auto

COVINGTON, Ky. (AP)—An Ohio man asked court officials to force a Covington couple to sell him a 45-year-old auto.

He wants to pay $2,000 for it.

Alan Eby of West Elkton, Ohio, named Parley and Joyce Wilder of Covington as owners of the 1911 Owen automobile he wants to add to his collection of old cars.

Eby said the Wilders agreed last March to sell the car for $2,000, but backed out of the deal after he paid a deposit of $200.

The car has a wooden body, wooden 44-inch wheels, a four cylinder engine and will carry seven passengers.

Grand Jury Slated To Probe 'Swindle' Of Pennsy Tollroad

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Gov. George Leader said today he would seek a grand jury investigation of what he termed "one of the greatest public swindles of all time" in the operation of the Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission under Republican control.

Atty. Gen. Herbert B. Cohen will file a petition with the Dauphin County Court Tuesday, Leader said, asking that a special grand jury be called to follow through on his charges.

"The people who set out to loot the turnpike commission set their goal at nearly 20 million dollars," the Democratic governor told a specially called news conference.

"Before their activities had been halted they had got their hands on $9,065,241.42.

"The instrumentality of this fraud is the Manu-Mine Research and Development Corp." the governor said.

The Reading firm started out with a nominal capital of $4,300, Leader added, declaring:

"Before it was done it had parlayed that small sum in total payments from the turnpike commission of $9,064,241.42."

Leader identified Charles W. Stickler Jr., Manu-Mine president, as the nephew of Thomas J. Evans, who resigned last year as chairman of the turnpike commission. Evans is a Schuylkill County Republican.

Manu-Mine was hired by the turnpike commission to flush mine voids under a portion of the northeastern extension of the superhighway. The commission, after Democrats took control this spring, cancelled its contract with Manu Mine.

The firm has filed suit for more than a million dollars which it said is still due from the commission. The same firm recently hired private detectives to look into the activities of Cohen and Joseph J. Lawler, highways secretary, who also serves on the turnpike commission.

"Mary Haworth's Mail"

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a boy 14 and I need your help badly. My family recently moved to this new neighborhood, and there are lots of children here, many of them about my age.

At first I thought it was going to be lots of fun, meeting new people and making new friends; but now I see that it is not any fun at all. It is pretty lonely.

Of all the children my age around here, none is ever home. All are working at something, such as cutting grass; and some even work as caddies at the local golf course, to make money.

When I first met the kids in this neighborhood, they all asked me to come and work with them; but I said "no," as I had never cut grass for anybody in my whole life. After this, things got worse; and, just because I have nothing to do, they started hating me, talking behind my back, calling me "lazy" and things like that.

Wanting to make things better, I started to work at the golf course. But I got fired after three days, and now all the neighborhood kids are mad at me, because I can't hold a job.

C. B.

DEAR C. B.: It is axiomatic that "He who would have friends must show himself friendly." In other words, the way to win friends is to be a friend. And what is a friend?

A friend, says Webster's Dictionary, is one attached to another by esteem, respect and affection. Also, a friend is "one not hostile; not a foe." A friend is a loyal booster.

The friendly soul goes out of his way to find common interests with other persons on first meeting, and in the first rounds of getting acquainted.

And it appears that the kids in your new neighborhood were friendly in their first encounters with you. They offered to take you in, when they invited you to share the work they do—since this is the way they spend their time. But you struck an attitude of being different and "out of their class" when you said "No"—in a prideful spirit of having no need to work, I gather.

Unfortunately you "have nothing to do," you say, which means you aren't a live wire. You don't cut any ice, so the kids look down on you. The basic remedy is to get busy and build up a program of "doing" that appeals to you, and leads to skills and enthusiasms shared by others. Then you'll find friends falling in step with you; maybe not at once, but gradually. For firsthand help, talk things over with a scout leader or YMCA counsellor, or similar guide to youth in your city.

'Nice Old Man' Kills Couple, Then Himself

CLEVELAND (AP)—A "nice old man" got up early Wednesday, shot and killed his daughter, her husband and himself—and nobody knows why.

"It seems he just went berserk," said Coroner Samuel R. Gerber.

Police reconstructed the tragedy this way:

Anthony Valenti, 82, a little, gray retired carpenter, lived with his daughter and her husband in a cottage in suburban South Euclid.

For the last several days, neighbors overheard arguments between Valenti and his son-in-law over the laying of a cement driveway.

Wednesday the old man got up before 7 a.m., dressed and got a loaded revolver.

He went into the kitchen where his son-in-law, Charles Tranchita, 59, dressed for his job as a machinist, was turning on a radio on a wall shelf.

Valenti shot him in the back and Tranchita fell dead, tearing a wire from the radio as he fell backwards.

The old man then went into a bedroom and shot his daughter, Angela Tranchita, 57. Her body, dressed in night clothes, was found at the foot of her bed, shot twice in the side.

Then Valenti went into the living room and shot himself in the head.

"He was a nice old man," said a neighbor, Joseph C. Fasciano. "I talked to him many a time out in the back yard."

Ike Sees Need To 'Teach' Solons

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower has been quoted by a White House visitor as saying "we need a professor in Congress to teach those congressmen something."

The remark was attributed to the President by William B. Prendergast of Bay Ridge, Md.

Prendergast said Eisenhower asked him about his occupation. Prendergast is a civilian professor of government at the U. S. Naval Academy, Annapolis.

It was at that point, Prendergast added, that Eisenhower declared "We need a professor in Congress to teach those congressmen something."

When states are added to the Union, additional stars are affixed only on the following July 4.

Champion Steer Brings High Price

DAYTON (AP)—Like a lot of other things, the price of champion steers is on the upgrade.

The 1,000-pound grand champion of the Montgomery County Fair, a black Angus owned by Miss Diora Stafford, 16, of New Lebanon, sold for $2.65 a pound. That was 55 cents a pound higher than the 1955 grand champion brought. And the 1955 price of $2.10 was a county fair record.

Miss Stafford, a 4-H Club member, exhibited the best in a field of 141 steers.

Troy Worker, 43, Is Electrocuted

TROY (AP)—One man was electrocuted and another was burned critically Wednesday when a pipe they were carrying came in contact with a 4,000-volt electric power line.

Charles J. Johnston, 43, died in Stouder Memorial Hospital here. Leslie Kindell, 53, was hospitalized in critical condition.

Johnston, a foreman, and Kindell were working at the Burton Hilltop Nursery at nearby Casstown, repairing a water pump, when the accident occurred.

33-County Area To Ask Farm Aid

COLUMBUS (AP)—Gov. Frank J. Lausche will be requested to seek federal aid for farmers in a 33-county eastern Ohio area.

State Agriculture Director A. L. Sorensen said that he will send such a recommendation to the governor this week.

He said federal approval will make farmers eligible for reduced rates on Farmers Home Administration loans and commercial grain purchases.

Counties included in the area are all those north and east of Erie, Huron, Crawford, Morrow, Licking, Muskingum, Morgan, Noble and Monroe.

Ohioan Asks Force In Sale Of Auto

COVINGTON, Ky. (AP)—An Ohio man asked court officials to force a Covington couple to sell him a 45-year-old auto.

He wants to pay $2,000 for it.

Alan Eby of West Elkton, Ohio, named Parley and Joyce Wilder of Covington as owners of the 1911 Owen automobile he wants to add to his collection of old cars.

Eby said the Wilders agreed last March to sell the car for $2,000, but backed out of the deal after he paid a deposit of $200.

The car has a wooden body, wooden 44-inch wheels, a four cylinder engine and will carry seven passengers.

Grand Jury Slated To Probe 'Swindle' Of Pennsy Tollroad

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Gov. George Leader said today he would seek a grand jury investigation of what he termed "one of the greatest public swindles of all time" in the operation of the Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission under Republican control.

Atty. Gen. Herbert B. Cohen will file a petition with the Dauphin County Court Tuesday, Leader said, asking that a special grand jury be called to follow through on his charges.

"The people who set out to loot the turnpike commission set their goal at nearly 20 million dollars," the Democratic governor told a specially called news conference.

"Before their activities had been halted they had got their hands on $9,065,241.42.

"The instrumentality of this fraud is the Manu-Mine Research and Development Corp." the governor said.

The Reading firm started out with a nominal capital of $4,300, Leader added, declaring:

"Before it was done it had parlayed that small sum in total payments from the turnpike commission of $9,064,241.42."

Leader identified Charles W. Stickler Jr., Manu-Mine president, as the nephew of Thomas J. Evans, who resigned last year as chairman of the turnpike commission. Evans is a Schuylkill County Republican.

Manu-Mine was hired by the turnpike commission to flush mine voids under a portion of the northeastern extension of the superhighway. The commission, after Democrats took control this spring, cancelled its contract with Manu Mine.

The firm has filed suit for more than a million dollars which it said is still due from the commission. The same firm recently hired private detectives to look into the activities of Cohen and Joseph J. Lawler, highways secretary, who also serves on the turnpike commission.

Q—How soon after I enter into schooling or training under the GI Bill will I get my first subsistence check?

A—It is impossble to say exactly how soon you will get your first check. However, a conservative guess would be around the middle of the second month after you start your schooling or training. A lot will depend upon how soon the training establishment mails the forms to the VA, how accurate the forms are, and how much the VA is on the ball.

Q—I was discharged in 1946. I dropped $5,000.00 worth of my National Service Life Insurance, retaining the remaining $5,000.00 as a Term Policy. Can I pick up the $5,000.00 worth of Insurance that I dropped back in 1946?

A—Sorry—you cannot. Prior to 1951, or within your term period, you could have picked up that insurance. It is too late now. I suggest that you take out some commercial insurance. Also, it is advisable to convert the insurance you are still carrying as soon as possible.

* * *

Q—I am 33 years old, how much will it cost me to convert?

A—That all depends upon the type of permanant plan insurance you plan to convert. If you convert to ordinary life insurance, it will run $1.69 per thousand dollars per month. If you convert to 30-Pay Life, it will run $1.95 per thousand dollars per month. 20-Pay Life will run $2.44 per thousand dollars per month. 20-Year endowment will run $3.54 per thousand dollars per month. Edowment age 60 will run $2.57 per thousand dollars per month, and endowment age 65 will run $2.19 per thousand per month. The older you are, the more expensive your converted policy will run.

* * *

Q—I am attending High School, taking a Post Graduate Course. I am married, and have one child. I will attend school ¾ time. How much subsistance will I get each month?

A—You will get $120.00 per month.

* * *

Q—Don't ask me how this happened, because I don't know, but I was wounded pretty bad while in combat, right in the seat of the pants. The disability, of course, is service connected, and I understand that a new law has been passed allowing a statuatory award for this type of disability. Is that correct?

A—That is correct. Public Law 969, 84th Congress allows a special statuatory award in the amount of $47.00 per month to be paid for the loss or loss of use of both buttocks. This is in addition to compensation which you are receiving.

Ohio School Enrollment Up By 62,000

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—An estimated 1,909,573 pupils—more than 62,000 above last year's enrollment—will squeeze their way into Ohio's bulging public and parochial classrooms this week.

And that number, says a state official, is a conservative estimate.

Harold J. Bowers, head of the State Education Department's Teacher Education and Certification Division, put public school enrollment at approximately 1,636,773. This would put parochial school enrollment at about 272,800.

Bowers said he cannot yet tell if there will be a sufficient number of teachers to handle the increased enrollment. More than 67,000 teachers, a slight increase over last year's combined public and parochial number, are expected to be in the classrooms this year.

Bowers, who had said earlier the state needed an additional 1,600 teachers in the public schools, remarked:

"I'm sure that there aren't that many openings left. But I won't be sure exactly how many there are for a couple of weeks."

3,083 Civilians Killed In Algeria

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP)—French headquarters has announced an name inscribed on it. The same breaks in Algeria showed 3,083 civilians killed. Of this number, 363 were French and the remainder Arabs.

A total of 31,642 farm animals were reported slain or led off by the rebels. The report said 299 schools had been destroyed.

Boilermaker Picnic Brings 10 Arrests

MONTEBELLO, Calif. (AP)—Tempers sizzled at the boilermaker's picnic here, police reported.

Officers said 10 arrests were made after fights broke out in scattered areas around Montebello Stadium, where some 1,000 members of Boilermakers Union were attending their annual picnic.

Three reserve officers on duty had to call for assistance from 20 sheriff's deputies and several California highway patrol units. Teargas guns were displayed before the melee cooled off.

Presidential Oath Platform Readied

WASHINGTON (AP)—A big stage where Dwight D. Eisenhower or Adlai Stevenson will stand next January to repeat the presidential oath is already being planned.

Bids are under study for construction of the platform on the steps of the Capitol. Work on it is expected to get underway in two weeks, to assure completion before winter weather arrives.

The law says Jan. 20 is the date for a President to take office. However, Jan. 20, 1957, falls on Sunday. So present prospects are that a private oath-taking ceremony will be held on that day with the big show (the one that the public will get to see) slated for the following day on the Capitol grounds.

A date palm may bear fruit for about 200 years.

Ohio Idle Pay Totals Outlined

COLUMBUS (AP)—State Treasurer Roger W. Tracy says that about $47 million in premium payments to the workmen's compensation fund were collected in the six months ended Aug. 31.

Tracy said the figure represents an increase of $14 million over the corresponding period last year, chiefly the result of rate increases effective last July.

Q—I am 33 years old, how much will it cost me to convert?

A—That all depends upon the type of permanant plan insurance you plan to convert. If you convert to ordinary life insurance, it will run $1.69 per thousand dollars per month. If you convert to 30-Pay Life, it will run $1.95 per thousand dollars per month. 20-Pay Life will run $2.44 per thousand dollars per month. 20-Year endowment will run $3.54 per thousand dollars per month. Edowment age 60 will run $2.57 per thousand dollars per month, and endowment age 65 will run $2.19 per thousand per month. The older you are, the more expensive your converted policy will run.

Q—I am attending High School, taking a Post Graduate Course. I am married, and have one child. I will attend school ¾ time. How much subsistance will I get each month?

A—You will get $120.00 per month.

• • •

Q—Don't ask me how this happened, because I don't know, but I was wounded pretty bad while in combat, right in the seat of the pants. The disability, of course, is service connected, and I understand that a new law has been passed allowing a statuatory award for this type of disability. Is that correct?

A—That is correct. Public Law 969, 84th Congress allows a special statuatory award in the amount of $47.00 per month to be paid for the loss or loss of use of both buttocks. This is in addition to compensation which you are receiving.

Ohio School Enrollment Up By 62,000

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—An estimated 1,909,573 pupils—more than 62,000 above last year's enrollment—will squeeze their way into Ohio's bulging public and parochial classrooms this week.

And that number, says a state official, is a conservative estimate.

Harold J. Bowers, head of the State Education Department's Teacher Education and Certification Division, put public school enrollment at approximately 1,636,773. This would put parochial school enrollment at about 272,800.

Bowers said he cannot yet tell if there will be a sufficient number of teachers to handle the increased enrollment. More than 67,000 teachers, a slight increase over last year's combined public and parochial number, are expected to be in the classrooms this year.

Bowers, who had said earlier the state needed an additional 1,600 teachers in the public schools, remarked:

"I'm sure that there aren't that many openings left. But I won't be sure exactly how many there are for a couple of weeks."

3,083 Civilians Killed In Algeria

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP)—French headquarters has announced an name inscribed on it. The same breaks in Algeria showed 3,083 civilians killed. Of this number, 363 were French and the remainder Arabs.

A total of 31,642 farm animals were reported slain or led off by the rebels. The report said 299 schools had been destroyed.

Boilermaker Picnic Brings 10 Arrests

MONTEBELLO, Calif. (AP)—Tempers sizzled at the boilermaker's picnic here, police reported.

Officers said 10 arrests were made after fights broke out in scattered areas around Montebello Stadium, where some 1,000 members of Boilermakers Union were attending their annual picnic.

Three reserve officers on duty had to call for assistance from 20 sheriff's deputies and several California highway patrol units. Teargas guns were displayed before the melee cooled off.

Presidential Oath Platform Readied

WASHINGTON (AP)—A big stage where Dwight D. Eisenhower or Adlai Stevenson will stand next January to repeat the presidential oath is already being planned.

Bids are under study for construction of the platform on the steps of the Capitol. Work on it is expected to get underway in two weeks, to assure completion before winter weather arrives.

The law says Jan. 20 is the date for a President to take office. However, Jan. 20, 1957, falls on Sunday. So present prospects are that a private oath-taking ceremony will be held on that day with the big show (the one that the public will get to see) slated for the following day on the Capitol grounds.

A date palm may bear fruit for about 200 years.

Ohio Idle Pay Totals Outlined

COLUMBUS (AP)—State Treasurer Roger W. Tracy says that about $47 million in premium payments to the workmen's compensation fund were collected in the six months ended Aug. 31.

Tracy said the figure represents an increase of $14 million over the corresponding period last year, chiefly the result of rate increases effective last July.

AUDIT THE FUNDS

AFL-CIO IS receiving praise for moving —belatedly—to suspend three unions believed to be controlled "by corrupt influences." The unions involved are the 25,000-member Distillery Workers Union, the 72,000-member Laundry Workers Union and the 73,000-member Allied Industrial Workers Union. This action needs to be pursued further, however.

What happens if these unions are ousted? The AFL kicked out the racketeer-dominated International Longshoremen's Union (ILU) and tried to supplant its control of the East Coast docks with a new union. But the move backfired. The dockworkers preferred to stick with the ILU, which is still carrying on. The ILU, in fact, having successfully defied the mammoth labor amalgamation, is now more powerful than ever.

The three unions involved this time are not as powerful as the ILU. It may be that they will knuckle under to George Meany and the AFL-CIO chiefs in a "cleanup drive." But the precedent for going their own way exists.

The only real answer involved reforms from within individual unions, or in federal legislation. Reform from within is most difficult to achieve, as every union member knows.

But legislation could strengthen the individual's power to change his leadership. Here is where the AFL-CIO chiefs could do the labor movement and nation a service —by coming up with a program for strengthening the individual's choice within his own union.

One of the first steps should be a law calling for government-supervised audits of all union funds.

THEY GO UP—AND DOWN

WHENEVER there is more than a slight decline in prices of stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange, there are always those among one's acquaintances who predict a chain reaction as a result, sometimes too horrible to contemplate.

Whenever stock prices continue to spiral upward for years, as they have been doing, these same individuals give forth with predictions that are roseate beyond limit.

Why, if stock prices have been going up days without number, they shouldn't go down, or why, if stock prices have been going down, it will be impossible for them to start up again, these financial "experts" never explain. It would be useless to ask them for an explanation, because at the moment they are probably engrossed with the problem of how to come by the scratch to make the payment on the car due next week (that will leave only 33 more).

Stocks, whether listed on a stock market or unlisted, sell for whatever someone is willing to pay for them. Some people must sell whether there is strong demand for their particular securities or not. If the demand is not strong, they must accept whatever someone is willing to give. If it is strong, likewise.

Most of the old shibboleths about the stock market have been dissipated over the years, and there are none of recent coinage to take their place. One was that stock prices always decline in Summer. The prize one of all was that the stock market was manipulated by "they," and when "they" decided a depression was what the country needed, "they" pulled the props out from under the market.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

In 1945, $350,000,000 of German foreign currency bonds, mostly dollar bonds, were in German banks and agencies in Berlin. Most were bearer certificates, purchased for retirement but as yet uncancelled. They were stolen by the Russians after the capture of Berlin. Some of them have been reappearing in world markets to be sold to innocent purchasers who failed to realize that they were of no value.

To safeguard other German foreign currency bonds which had not been stolen by the Russians, such bonds must be validated in this country by the Validation Board for German Dollar Bonds — a board which consists of German and American members.

The Russians confiscated German-held foreign currency bonds in the Reichsbank and other Berlin banks. The West German Government has refused to recognize the right of the Russians to this property and has taken the position that these bonds were stolen and could not again be put into circulation and sale to third parties. The British, French and American governments agreed with the West German Government. Furthermore, they wanted to protect their own citizens who held German foreign bonds.

The Validation Board in New York has had a number of cases before it of bonds showing up which actually had been looted by the Russians. The question arises whether the Russian Government is attempting to sell these bonds in the open market or is using them for purposes which are not yet known.

In the case of Richard H. Abrey, the Validation Board rejected validation of 245 United Steel Works Corporation $1,000, 6½ percent 20-year Sinking Fund Debentures. Abrey said that after the collapse of Poland in 1939, he felt is necessary to escape from his native land and that he obtained Honduran diplomatic passports for himself and his wife, and that he purchased the 245 $1,000 bonds to take them out of Poland.

He and his wife left Warsaw on July 17, 1940 with the bonds in a sealed suitcase and eventually arrived in New York. He apparently consulted about selling the bonds but found it impossible, so he left the bonds with Juan Funes, the Honduran Consul-General in New York, who agreed to keep the package which he did from September 3, 1942 until December 1950 when the package was returned to Abrey.

When Abrey entered the United States, he failed to notify the Immigration authorities of his possessions as was required. He testified that he was afraid to tell them about these bonds because they were German in origin.

In the case of Mrs. Jean Gruter, she accepted one $1000, 25-year 6½ percent Sinking Fund Gold Siemens & Halske Stock Corporation Bond in Milan, Italy during 1951 as part payment of a debt owed to her by a Dr. Franz Adam Minnich of Innsbruck, Austria. Dr. Minnich told her that he had acquired the bond from a Swiss named Schmid who got it in January 1945.

The bond had been tampered with to cover up cancellation perforations. Between 1943-5, all such bonds were cancelled by perforation. The Russian army occupied the building where these bonds were in a vault in 1945.

Inspection of the building at the beginning of 1947 showed that the vaults had been broken into through the masonry on the outside and that the vaults had been looted. A similar rejection of validation was made by the board in relation to a Siemens, Halske Bond held by the Credito Italiano of Rome on behalf of Marion Alessandroni.

Check Child's Smile For Irregular Teeth

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

TEETH that are irregular or not in their proper place won't strike properly when your jaws are brought together. This means you have a bad bite or malocclusion.

Strongest Muscles

The muscles of your jaws and mouth are among the strongest in your body. There is a great deal of pressure exerted when the teeth are brought together for chewing.

If the teeth fail to come together perfectly, a few of them suffer a continuous pounding and hammering. They are actually overworked. Gradually, they may move or become tilted, wear down excessively and even be lost prematurely.

Other teeth also suffer from disuse or from side pressure caused by the teeth that do all the work.

For some persons, a good job of chewing is virtually impossible. Not only do they place a needless burden on their digestive systems, but they also miss out on many tasty and nutritious foods simply because chewing is too difficult for them.

Physical Health

Frequently, this results in poor nutrition and digestion. Their mental health may suffer as well as their physical health.

Persons with irregular teeth often are embarrassed and try to keep them covered. Naturally, this handicaps them in smiling and speaking.

It's best to take action to prevent irregular teeth at an early age. Take a good look at your youngster's teeth the next time he smiles. While you can't always tell if they are irregular, some youngsters have teeth that obviously aren't straight.

Expert Advice

If you have any doubt about the condition of your youngster's chewers, take him to the dentist and get some expert advice.

And don't use the excuse that "they're just baby teeth." Those primary teeth normally guide the first permanent molars into place. So it's important that even the first set is straight.

I suggest a thorough dental examination for every child early in life and, by the age of 3, regular checkups.

Remember, it's up to you parents to help that youngster keep his smile bright.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

E. K.: I have calluses on the soles of my feet. They have been removed several times but recur. Is there any way I can get rid of them permanently?

Answer: Usually, calluses of this type can be removed by the use of dry ice. The cure usually is permanent once they have been removed.

SYNOPSIS

In Wild West days, Narcissa Hull traveled by stagecoach to Coyote Creek, in northeastern Montana, to marry Emil Jacobsen. One passenger became obnoxious in his attentions to her—Dolf Kinney. He bragged of being the richest and most powerful man in the territory, and told her to jilt Jacobsen and marry him. Narcissa found comfort in the presence of Dr. Erd Eklund, who helped her fend off Kinney. When the stagecoach stopped at Coyote Creek, Emil was not waiting for her. "Looks like your feller didn't show up," Kinney said. "When you change your mind, let me know." Dr. Eklund offered to take Narcissa to Emil's cabin. On the way they heard the pounding hoofs of a hard-ridden horse shortcutting them. They find Emil murdered.

CHAPTER 3

EMIL had died from a bullet through the heart, and not long before. Half an hour, Eklund guessed, after a quick examination. And remembering that horseman who had cut across the coulee to pass them so hurriedly on the way out, he knew a dark suspicion, but this he kept to himself.

Narcissa was staring down, wordlessly. She did not drop on her knees beside the dead man or even weep over him, recognizing that he was past knowing or feeling. Her eyes questioned Eklund, wordlessly, and he shook his head as he got to his feet.

"Somebody shot him," he said, and spread his hands. "Looks like he'd not much more than stepped out of the house."

"You mean—murder?" she whispered.

"Since he hasn't got a gun on him, that's what it amounts to," the doctor conceded, and studied the ground attentively. But there was grass here, rather than dirt, and the killer had left no signs behind.

His examination had been brief, but sufficient for his purpose. A gunshot was the immediate cause of death, but not, Eklund judged, the reason why Emil Jacobsen had failed to keep his appointment in town. There were other signs easy to read to the experienced eye, and they only made what had happened more horrible.

If his diagnosis was correct, Jacobsen had failed to ride in to town because he had been a very sick man today. Suffering had etched new lines across his face, and Eklund had seen the other symptoms before. It was nothing about which a doctor could do much. Inflammation of the bowels, his colleagues called it, and some of them recommended a strong purgative, while others suggested wet towels applied as compresses. Honest medicos generally admitted that it didn't make much difference. Occasionally a patient recovered, not because of what the doctor was able to do, but in spite of it. More often they died.

There was no doubt in his mind that Emil Jacobsen would have died, for it was plain to be told that the appendix had ruptured. But that did not lessen the crime of what had happened here. If anything, it enhanced it—to call a man already in agony from his house and shoot him, unarmed and helpless.

"What can we do?" Narcissa whispered.

Eklund glanced toward the sun, just disappearing over the rim of the earth, close beside where the Rockies lifted like a dark curtain against the still bright edge of the sky. Stooping, he gathered the dead man up in his arms, lifting him with an exhibition of strength which the girl found surprising, for Jacobsen was a considerably larger man.

Inside the cabin, he deposited him on the bunk, observing the preparations which Jacobsen had made for the coming of his bride. It was crude but effective carpenter work, enlarging the bunk to serve as a double bed, with a deep fresh mattress of pine boughs beneath the blankets. Those would have required a full day of work, riding twenty miles to cut them, as far back again.

A shiny new water bucket was on the table, and there were other touches, pitiful now. Carefully, Eklund arranged the blanket over Jacobsen, drawing it to cover the face. Thinking hard, he had arrived at a decision.

"The moon will be up pretty soon," he explained. "I've got to visit the Indian I came out to see. That won't take long, for his cabin is only about an hour's drive from here. Then we'll head back for town, and I'll report to the authorities. They'll take care of things."

"You mean the sheriff?"

Eklund held the door open for her, shook his head as he closed it behind them.

"We don't have a sheriff. Nothing's organized up this way. But there's an army post—Fort Meade—about five miles southwest of town. The soldiers there are the law in this country."

Her bag was still in the buggy. He helped her in, climbed in beside her, and headed north in the swift-deepening dusk. She looked back once, her face showing white and strained.

"It looks so—so lonely, to go off and leave him there," she whispered.

"This is a lonesome country," Eklund conceded. "But he isn't lonely—now."

He drove in silence, sensing that she would wish to be alone with her thoughts. There had been shock and disbelief in her face, but no overwhelming grief. She had known Emil Jacobsen, but that was years back, and liking or affection was not the same as passionate love. Her sense of loss would not be too great.

But if the dead were beyond worry, their passing, particularly in such an untimely fashion, always posed problems for the living. Erd Eklund shrank in horror from the thought that had obtruded itself immediately, yet it would not down. That horseman, sweeping out from town, passing them so swiftly but keeping out of sight, the murder, only minutes ahead of their arrival—

This could be Dolf Kinney's method of blocking the marriage, to try and get what he wanted for himself. He had made it abundantly plain, to one who knew him as did the doctor, that he intended to have this woman for his own. Jacobsen had posed a problem, but there were men with guns for hire, and Kinney had demonstrated an almost comparable ruthlessness on more than one occasion in the past.

Whether his suspicion was true or not, Kinney would be doubly insistent now that she marry him. It would be a solution, but even without that ugliness which nagged at his mind, Eklund found himself disliking the thought with a growing violence.

She wouldn't want to return to Indiana. She hadn't been wanted or welcome there, and she had chosen this way as an escape. It was exceedingly doubtful if she had any money left to buy stage and train passage back, in any case.

The moon came up, an uncertain disc which shed a shadowy light and revealed to the doctor's keen glance the traces of tears on his companion's cheeks. Stars shook off the cumbering blanket of darkness and made a marching majesty across the heavens, the ground dipped slightly, and here was timber of a sort, trees weird and grotesque and unbelievable in the half-light.

"What odd trees!" Narcissa exclaimed. "What causes that? Is it the wind?"

Eklund shook his head, allowing the horses to slow to a walk.

"Wind would bend them in a long crook, like a bow," he pointed out. "No, it's snow that does it. Pushing them down, bending them over with its weight, holding them so until spring thaws set them free. They keep growing, but under handicaps."

"Snow!" She looked more closely at the trees, marveling. "There must be an awful lot of it."

"There is, generally," he conceded. "The trees prove it. It was pretty deep through this section last winter."

The oddity had lifted her out of her own immediate troubles, as he had hoped it might. Now he voiced a doubt that had been nagging in his mind for the last hour.

"I'm askin' this question as a doctor. Have you ever been vaccinated for smallpox?"

She looked at him, startled, but shook her head.

"Why no, I haven't," she said. "Why?"

"I figured likely not. Not many have. That was smallpox vaccine I went to Forty Mile for," he added, pulling the team to a standstill and reaching down for his own black bag.

"I had a supply, but I soon used it up. What I'm trying to say is, I'll vaccinate you now, if you don't mind. It won't hurt, but you'll be safe, just in case. This patient that I'm going to see—I don't know for sure that he's coming down with smallpox. If he is—well, it can be an isolated case, and maybe it won't spread. But that's something you can never be sure of."

Lady, Let Your Man Putter --By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP)—Many wives today complain that puttering husbands are driving them out of their minds.

It's a side effect of the do-it-yourself fad that has gripped millions of American men.

"They leave the house a mess from basement to attic," some wives object bitterly.

But the truth is that a number of these amateur tinkers are coming up with new and profitable household inventions.

"Not my husband," the average wife may object. "If I gave him a blow torch, he couldn't even invent warm water."

Well, maybe. Then again, maybe not. You never know when or where inventive genius will strike.

Here, for example, are two of many recent cases:

When his wife became ill, Eli Tchack, a hardware dealer of Linden, N. J., had to prepare his own meals for a few days.

Tchack, who likes to broil steaks didn't mind the cooking at all. But he hated the later chore of scrubbing pans.

Noticing some aluminum foil in the kitchen, he began tinkering with it, tryng to make a disposable broiling tray.

After several experiments, he came up with a tray with high sides and deep grooves to catch the dripping fat. He found he could cook his steaks, throw away the aluminum foil tray, and leave the rotisserie as clean as a hound's bicuspid.

Tchack naturally bragged about his new idea to some fellow businessmen, and one suggested:

"Why don't you patent and sell it?"

He did. He founded a new firm, his trays are now sold in hundreds of supermarkets, and Tchack is launched on a million-dollar business.

But a fellow doesn't have to wait for his wife to fall ill to come up with a money-making idea.

Take George Lerner of Freeport, Long Island. One day bad weather kept his children in and, bored, they asked him if he couldn't think up something they could play. They were tired of their old toys.

Remembering a game he had played in rainy days during his own childhood, Lerner, a commercial artist, got out some potatoes and carrots. Then, using collar buttons, toothpicks and other odds-and-ends, he began to turn the vegetables into life-like people. The children were delighted.

"If my kids get a kick out of a simple thing like this, why wouldn't other kids?" Lerner asked himself.

The result was "Mr. Potato-head," a collection of plastic ears, noses, mouths and eyes which children could press into vegetables and fruit. Lerner's royalties now would enable him to buy several vegetable or fruit farms if he chose.

Lerner, who now works full time in his basement laboratory developing new toys, has this to say about his success.

"Unfortunately, many people, when they go get a good profitable idea, don't have enough faith in it. They're afraid it's too simple."

The moral, ladies, is this: if you have a husband who likes to putter, let the guy alone.

If he comes up with even one good simple idea, it'll keep you in minkcoat money the rest of your life.

The University of Connecticut came up with a psychological study on Ike and Adlai. Both specimens are reported not unfavorably.

Ike seems to be a "father image." Probably to people who always wanted a father who grew up to be President of the United States.

Adlai appears as a capable, intelligent man with "no particular appeal for the common man." Kind of tough, because we're in the majority.

There are a lot of varieties of common man, and both Ike and Adlai want to be liked by them. The common voter, for instance.

There also is the common farm man. A surplus crop, in fact.

There are common Republicans and common Democrats. Anyhow, they look that way to each other.

The study was conducted among 178 college juniors and seniors in New England. Common undergraduates.

When police commissioner of New York in 1895, Theodore Roosevelt authorized the appointment of eight matrons — the first policewomen—to be in charge of female prisoners.

AUDIT THE FUNDS

AFL-CIO IS receiving praise for moving—belatedly—to suspend three unions believed to be controlled "by corrupt influences." The unions involved are the 25,000-member Distillery Workers Union, the 72,000-member Laundry Workers Union and the 73,000-member Allied Industrial Workers Union. This action needs to be pursued further, however.

What happens if these unions are ousted? The AFL kicked out the racketeer-dominated International Longshoremen's Union (ILU) and tried to supplant its control of the East Coast docks with a new union. But the move backfired. The dockworkers preferred to stick with the ILU, which is still carrying on. The ILU, in fact, having successfully defied the mammoth labor amalgamation, is now more powerful than ever.

The three unions involved this time are not as powerful as the ILU. It may be that they will knuckle under to George Meany and the AFL-CIO chiefs in a "cleanup drive." But the precedent for going their own way exists.

The only real answer involved reforms from within individual unions, or in federal legislation. Reform from within is most difficult to achieve, as every union member knows.

But legislation could strengthen the individual's power to change his leadership. Here is where the AFL-CIO chiefs could do the labor movement and nation a service—by coming up with a program for strengthening the individual's choice within his own union.

One of the first steps should be a law calling for government-supervised audits of all union funds.

THEY GO UP—AND DOWN

WHENEVER there is more than a slight decline in prices of stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange, there are always those among one's acquaintances who predict a chain reaction as a result, sometimes too horrible to contemplate.

Whenever stock prices continue to spiral upward for years, as they have been doing, these same individuals give forth with predictions that are roseate beyond limit.

Why, if stock prices have been going up days without number, they shouldn't go down, or why, if stock prices have been going down, it will be impossible for them to start up again, these financial "experts" never explain. It would be useless to ask them for an explanation, because at the moment they are probably engrossed with the problem of how to come by the scratch to make the payment on the car due next week (that will leave only 33 more).

Stocks, whether listed on a stock market or unlisted, sell for whatever someone is willing to pay for them. Some people must sell whether there is strong demand for their particular securities or not. If the demand is not strong, they must accept whatever someone is willing to give. If it is strong, likewise.

Most of the old shibboleths about the stock market have been dissipated over the years, and there are none of recent coinage to take their place. One was that stock prices always decline in Summer. The prize one of all was that the stock market was manipulated by "they," and when "they" decided a depression was what the country needed, "they" pulled the props out from under the market.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

In 1945, $350,000,000 of German foreign currency bonds, mostly dollar bonds, were in German banks and agencies in Berlin. Most were bearer certificates, purchased for retirement but as yet uncancelled. They were stolen by the Russians after the capture of Berlin. Some of them have been reappearing in world markets to be sold to innocent purchasers who failed to realize that they were of no value.

To safeguard other German foreign currency bonds which had not been stolen by the Russians, such bonds must be validated in this country by the Validation Board for German Dollar Bonds — a board which consists of German and American members.

The Russians confiscated German-held foreign currency bonds in the Reichsbank and other Berlin banks. The West German Government has refused to recognize the right of the Russians to this property and has taken the position that these bonds were stolen and could not again be put into circulation and sale to third parties. The British, French and American governments agreed with the West German Government. Furthermore, they wanted to protect their own citizens who held German foreign bonds.

The Validation Board in New York has had a number of cases before it of bonds showing up which actually had been looted by the Russians. The question arises whether the Russian Government is attempting to sell these bonds in the open market or is using them for purposes which are not yet known.

In the case of Richard H. Abrey, the Validation Board rejected validation of 245 United Steel Works Corporation $1,000, 6½ percent 20-year Sinking Fund Debentures. Abrey said that after the collapse of Poland in 1939, he felt is necessary to escape from his native land and that he obtained Honduran diplomatic passports for himself and his wife, and that he purchased the 245 $1,000 bonds to take them out of Poland.

He and his wife left Warsaw on July 17, 1940 with the bonds in a sealed suitcase and eventually arrived in New York. He apparently consulted about selling the bonds but found it impossible, so he left the bonds with Juan Funes, the Honduran Consul-General in New York, who agreed to keep the package which he did from September 3, 1942 until December 1950 when the package was returned to Abrey.

When Abrey entered the United States, he failed to notify the Immigration authorities of his possessions as was required. He testified that he was afraid to tell them about these bonds because they were German in origin.

In the case of Mrs. Jean Gruter, she accepted one $1000, 25-year 6½ percent Sinking Fund Gold Siemens & Halske Stock Corporation Bond in Milan, Italy during 1951 as part payment of a debt owed to her by a Dr. Franz Adam Minnich of Innsbruck, Austria. Dr. Minnich told her that he had acquired the bond from a Swiss named Schmid who got it in January 1945.

The bond had been tampered with to cover up cancellation perforations. Between 1943-5, all such bonds were cancelled by perforation. The Russian army occupied the building where these bonds were in a vault in 1945.

Inspection of the building at the beginning of 1947 showed that the vaults had been broken into through the masonry on the outside and that the vaults had been looted. A similar rejection of validation was made by the board in relation to a Siemens, Halske Bond held by the Credito Italiano of Rome on behalf of Marion Alessandroni.

Check Child's Smile For Irregular Teeth

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

TEETH that are irregular or not in their proper place won't strike properly when your jaws are brought together. This means you have a bad bite or malocclusion.

Strongest Muscles

The muscles of your jaws and mouth are among the strongest in your body. There is a great deal of pressure exerted when the teeth are brought together for chewing.

If the teeth fail to come together perfectly, a few of them suffer a continuous pounding and hammering. They are actually overworked. Gradually, they may move or become tilted, wear down excessively and even be lost prematurely.

Other teeth also suffer from disuse or from side pressure caused by the teeth that do all the work.

For some persons, a good job of chewing is virtually impossible. Not only do they place a needless burden on their digestive systems, but they also miss out on many tasty and nutritious foods simply because chewing is too difficult for them.

Physical Health

Frequently, this results in poor nutrition and digestion. Their mental health may suffer as well as their physical health.

Persons with irregular teeth often are embarrassed and try to keep them covered. Naturally, this handicaps them in smiling and speaking.

It's best to take action to prevent irregular teeth at an early age. Take a good look at your youngster's teeth the next time he smiles. While you can't always tell if they are irregular, some youngsters have teeth that obviously aren't straight.

Expert Advice

If you have any doubt about the condition of your youngster's chewers, take him to the dentist and get some expert advice.

And don't use the excuse that "they're just baby teeth." Those primary teeth normally guide the first permanent molars into place. So it's important that even the first set is straight.

I suggest a thorough dental examination for every child early in life and, by the age of 3, regular checkups.

Remember, it's up to you parents to help that youngster keep his smile bright.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

E. K.: I have calluses on the soles of my feet. They have been removed several times but recur. Is there any way I can get rid of them permanently?

Answer: Usually, calluses of this type can be removed by the use of dry ice. The cure usually is permanent once they have been removed.

SYNOPSIS

In Wild West days, Narcissa Hull traveled by stagecoach to Coyote Creek, in northeastern Montana, to marry Emil Jacobsen. One passenger became obnoxious in his attentions to her—Dolf Kinney. He bragged of being the richest and most powerful man in the territory, and told her to jilt Jacobsen and marry him. Narcissa found comfort in the presence of Dr. Erd Eklund, who helped her fend off Kinney. When the stagecoach stopped at Coyote Creek, Emil was not waiting for her. "Looks like your feller didn't show up," Kinney said. "When you change your mind, let me know." Dr. Eklund offered to take Narcissa to Emil's cabin. On the way they heard the pounding hoofs of a hard-ridden horse shortcutting them. They find Emil murdered.

CHAPTER 3

EMIL had died from a bullet through the heart, and not long before. Half an hour, Eklund guessed, after a quick examination. And remembering that horseman who had cut across the coulee to pass them so hurriedly on the way out, he knew a dark suspicion, but this he kept to himself.

Narcissa was staring down, wordlessly. She did not drop on her knees beside the dead man or even weep over him, recognizing that he was past knowing or feeling. Her eyes questioned Eklund, wordlessly, and he shook his head as he got to his feet.

"Somebody shot him," he said, and spread his hands. "Looks like he'd not much more than stepped out of the house."

"You mean—murder?" she whispered.

"Since he hasn't got a gun on him, that's what it amounts to," the doctor conceded, and studied the ground attentively. But there was grass here, rather than dirt, and the killer had left no signs behind.

His examination had been brief, but sufficient for his purpose. A gunshot was the immediate cause of death, but not, Eklund judged, the reason why Emil Jacobsen had failed to keep his appointment in town. There were other signs easy to read to the experienced eye, and they only made what had happened more horrible.

If his diagnosis was correct, Jacobsen had failed to ride in to town because he had been a very sick man today. Suffering had etched new lines across his face, and Eklund had seen the other symptoms before. It was nothing about which a doctor could do much. Inflammation of the bowels, his colleagues called it, and some of them recommended a strong purgative, while others suggested wet towels applied as compresses. Honest medicos generally admitted that it didn't make much difference. Occasionally a patient recovered, not because of what the doctor was able to do, but in spite of it. More often they died.

There was no doubt in his mind that Emil Jacobsen would have died, for it was plain to be told that the appendix had ruptured. But that did not lessen the crime of what had happened here. If anything, it enhanced it—to call a man already in agony from his house and shoot him, unarmed and helpless.

"What can we do?" Narcissa whispered.

Eklund glanced toward the sun, just disappearing over the rim of the earth, close beside where the Rockies lifted like a dark curtain against the still bright edge of the sky. Stooping, he gathered the dead man up in his arms, lifting him with an exhibition of strength which the girl found surprising, for Jacobsen was a considerably larger man.

Inside the cabin, he deposited him on the bunk, observing the preparations which Jacobsen had made for the coming of his bride. It was crude but effective carpenter work, enlarging the bunk to serve as a double bed, with a deep fresh mattress of pine boughs beneath the blankets. Those would have required a full day of work, riding twenty miles to cut them, as far back again.

A shiny new water bucket was on the table, and there were other touches, pitiful now. Carefully, Eklund arranged the blanket over Jacobsen, drawing it to cover the face. Thinking hard, he had arrived at a decision.

"The moon will be up pretty soon," he explained. "I've got to visit the Indian I came out to see. That won't take long, for his cabin is only about an hour's drive from here. Then we'll head back for town, and I'll report to the authorities. They'll take care of things."

"You mean the sheriff?"

Eklund held the door open for her, shook his head as he closed it behind them.

"We don't have a sheriff. Nothing's organized up this way. But there's an army post—Fort Meade—about five miles southwest of town. The soldiers there are the law in this country."

Her bag was still in the buggy. He helped her in, climbed in beside her, and headed north in the swift-deepening dusk. She looked back once, her face showing white and strained.

"It looks so—so lonely, to go off and leave him there," she whispered.

"This is a lonesome country," Eklund conceded. "But he isn't lonely—now."

He drove in silence, sensing that she would wish to be alone with her thoughts. There had been shock and disbelief in her face, but no overwhelming grief. She had known Emil Jacobsen, but that was years back, and liking or affection was not the same as passionate love. Her sense of loss would not be too great.

But if the dead were beyond worry, their passing, particularly in such an untimely fashion, always posed problems for the living. Erd Eklund shrank in horror from the thought that had obtruded itself immediately, yet it would not down. That horseman, sweeping out from town, passing them so swiftly but keeping out of sight, the murder, only minutes ahead of their arrival—

This could be Dolf Kinney's method of blocking the marriage, to try and get what he wanted for himself. He had made it abundantly plain, to one who knew him as did the doctor, that he intended to have this woman for his own. Jacobsen had posed a problem, but there were men with guns for hire, and Kinney had demonstrated an almost comparable ruthlessness on more than one occasion in the past.

Whether his suspicion was true or not, Kinney would be doubly insistent now that she marry him. It would be a solution, but even without that ugliness which nagged at his mind, Eklund found himself disliking the thought with a growing violence.

She wouldn't want to return to Indiana. She hadn't been wanted or welcome there, and she had chosen this way as an escape. It was exceedingly doubtful if she had any money left to buy stage and train passage back, in any case.

The moon came up, an uncertain disc which shed a shadowy light and revealed to the doctor's keen glance the traces of tears on his companion's cheeks. Stars shook off the cumbering blanket of darkness and made a marching majesty across the heavens, the ground dipped slightly, and here was timber of a sort, trees weird and grotesque and unbelievable in the half-light.

"What odd trees!" Narcissa exclaimed. "What causes that? Is it the wind?"

Eklund shook his head, allowing the horses to slow to a walk.

"Wind would bend them in a long crook, like a bow," he pointed out. "No, it's snow that does it. Pushing them down, bending them over with its weight, holding them so until spring thaws set them free. They keep growing, but under handicaps."

"Snow!" She looked more closely at the trees, marveling. "There must be an awful lot of it."

"There is, generally," he conceded. "The trees prove it. It was pretty deep through this section last winter."

The oddity had lifted her out of her own immediate troubles, as he had hoped it might. Now he voiced a doubt that had been nagging in his mind for the last hour.

"I'm askin' this question as a doctor. Have you ever been vaccinated for smallpox?"

She looked at him, startled, but shook her head.

"Why no, I haven't," she said. "Why?"

"I figured likely not. Not many have. That was smallpox vaccine I went to Forty Mile for," he added, pulling the team to a standstill and reaching down for his own black bag.

"I had a supply, but I soon used it up. What I'm trying to say is, I'll vaccinate you now, if you don't mind. It won't hurt, but you'll be safe, just in case. This patient that I'm going to see—I don't know for sure that he's coming down with smallpox. If he is—well, it can be an isolated case, and maybe it won't spread. But that's something you can never be sure of."

Lady, Let Your Man Putter --By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP)—Many wives today complain that puttering husbands are driving them out of their minds.

It's a side effect of the do-it-yourself fad that has gripped millions of American men.

"They leave the house a mess from basement to attic," some wives object bitterly.

Well, maybe. Then again, maybe not. You never know when or where inventive genius will strike.

Here, for example, are two of many recent cases:

He did. He founded a new firm, his trays are now sold in hundreds of supermarkets, and Tchack is launched on a million-dollar business.

But a fellow doesn't have to wait for his wife to fall ill to come up with a money-making idea.

The result was "Mr. Potato-head," a collection of plastic ears, noses, mouths and eyes which children could press into vegetables and fruit. Lerner's royalties now would enable him to buy several vegetable or fruit farms if he chose.

Lerner, who now works full time in his basement laboratory developing new toys, has this to say about his success.

"Unfortunately, many people, when they go get a good profitable idea, don't have enough faith in it. They're afraid it's too simple."

Installation Highlights Meeting Of Altar Society

Program Features Talk By Rev. Mason

Installation of officers for the coming year highlighted the first fall meeting of the Altar Society of St. Joseph's Church.

Mrs. Paul Hang presided at the opening of the session, which was held Wednesday evening in the social rooms of the church. Tennessee Judge Saddened His Race Order Brings Fuss

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The federal judge who ordered integration of Clinton High School, touching off racial strife which has rocked neighboring Anderson County, comes from a family virtually synonymous with Tennessee history.

And no one is sadder than he that his order, at the direction of the Sixth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati, has resulted in all the fuss.

Robert Love Taylor, U.S. district judge for east Tennessee, was born nearly 57 years ago in Washington County — in the triangular tip of upper east Tennessee. He has lived in the east Tennessee Mountains all his life, and before he was named to the federal bench in 1949, was prominent in Tennessee Democratic politics.

The first time he ruled on the Clinton integration question — in 1952 — he denied a group of Clinton Negroes' request for an injunction. His integration order was directed by the Circuit Court after the U.S. Supreme Court in 1954 had banned public school segregation. He signed the order last Jan. 4.

In line with his family's mark on Tennessee history, Clinton High is the first state-supported secondary shool in the Volunteer State to mix Negro and white students.

He has built a reputation in court as a man you don't fool around with. When he issues an order, he means it.

His sentencing John Kasper, Washington, D.C., segregationist leader, to one year in prison for contempt of court is typical.

Taylor ordered Kasper arrested for violating a court order issued a week ago today which barred Kasper and others from acting to block the original integration ruling.

Known by friends as "Little Bob," Taylor is the son of the late Gov. Alf Taylor and the nephew of the late Gov. and U.S. Sen. Bob Taylor. These brothers ran against each other for governor in 1886, Alf as a Republican and Bob as a Democrat, in one of Tennessee's most famous political episodes.

The brothers opposed each other from the same platforms, Alf speaking with quiet decorum and Bob playing the fiddle and reeling off mountain humor. Bob won that race, but Alf later served as governor also.

In 1948, he successfully managed the Democratic primary campaign for former Gov. Gordon Browning and later in the year as state chairman, handled the general election campaigns of Browning and Sen. Estes Kefauver—now Democratic vice presidential nominee.

"Uncle Bob and my father were, of course, my main heroes," the modest Taylor says. But others in his family were equally famous in their ways.

For instance, great-uncle Landon C. Haynes was imprisoned during the Civl War because he served as a senator in the Congress of the Confederacy. His father and grandmother went to Abraham Lincoln personally to obtain his pardon.

Great-grandfather Nathaniel G. Taylor fought the French at New Orleans with Tennessee's famous general and president, Andrew Jackson.

Judge Taylor is a quiet, unassuming man who likes to work around the house—he mows his own lawn—and his wife says, "he can cook, too." The Taylors have two children, Bob Taylor Jr., 17, and a daughter, Ann Tanner Taylor, 20.

2 Reformatory Escapees Nabbed

CINCINNATI (AP) — Police have captured Clifford Baker, 22, Pittsburgh, Pa., and Steven Zaludek, 22, of Millstone, N. J., escapees from the federal reformatory at Chillicothe.

Also taken into custody was George Grubb, 18, Cincinnati, a parolee from the reformatory.

Baker and Zaludek, were in a 1956 automobile stolen near Columbus when they were captured, police said. Baker, who was in prison for mail theft, and Zaludek, who was convicted of auto theft, escaped Sunday.

Baker and Zaludek said they went to Grubb's home, where they discarded their prison garb.

The name Venezuela, meaning little Venice, was probably given to the country because of the native custom of building dwellings on piles in Lake Maracaibo.

It may be that all the known parties in these cases are innocent purchasers of German dollar bonds looted by the Russians in Berlin, but it is necessary to protect this country from an infiltration of $350,000,000 of worthless bonds part of which are beginning to show up in the world market and all of which can be used in this country for subversive purposes.

Innocent persons speculating in such bonds ought to protect themselves by communicating with the Board for the Validation of German Dollar Bonds in the United States, 30 Broad Street, New York.

With possibilities of checking on the validity of German bonds, it would seem to be dishonest to pass them on to another innocent person. Certainly, such an act could lead to legal difficulties. An effort will be made by the Senate Subcommittee on Internal Security to discover how many of these Russian-stolen bonds are now in this country.

Sciotoville Plagued By Cable Damage

PORTSMOUTH, Ohio (AP)—Officials of the struck Ohio Consolidated Telephone Co., said today virtually all service in the nearby Sciotoville area has been cut off as a result of a new wave of cable slashings.

A company supervisor said Wednesday 30 cable cuttings have been detected in the past two days in the Sciotoville area. Company officials said this brought to 70 the number of cable slashings in the Portsmouth area since the strike started June 15.

The Communication Workers of America (CWA), representing the 600 striking operators and service personnel, has consistently denied responsibility for vandalism that has marked the strike.

Meanwhile, Herbert Hensley, 31, of Sciotoville, husband of a striking operator, was charged with assault and battery as a result of a beating of an Ohio Consolidated supervisor.

The supervisor, Stanley W. Ratajack, said he was beaten six times with an ax handle as he left the Sciotoville exchange at noon Tuesday.

Hensley posted a $50 bond for an appearance in Municipal Court.

Ohio Consolidated serves parts of 24 southern Ohio counties. About half of its telephones are automatic. Supervisors are manning the manual exchanges, with the exception of that at New Boston, which was closed several weeks ago after it was stoned.

The strike by the CWA started when union and company negotators were unable to agree on terms of a new one-year contract to replace the old one that expired June 14. A union shop, no strike agreement, and transfer of certain positions now under union jurisdiction to managerial status are the principal issues blocking a settlement.

Another Version Scheduled In The Jesse James' Story

HOLLYWOOD (AP) —That durable film figure, Jesse James, is being hauled out again, only to be shot in the back again by "That Dirty Little Coward."

The saga of Jesse has been told and retold on the screen, but 20th Century-Fox is starting another version this week with Robert Wagner as the Missouri badman and Jeffrey Hunter as brother Frank. Explains the Jess James producer, Herbert Bayard Swope Jr.:

"The first 'Jesse James' that starred Tyrone Power and Henry Fonda in 1939 made a lot of money in its initial run and has been the studio's biggest grosser in reissues. For that reason, Buddy Adler, (studio boss) decided we should try a new version.

"This one, I think will come the closest to the truth about Jesse James as is possible. Of course, it's not easy with a figure about whom so much legend has grown up.

"Jesse James was a complex personality who was an outlaw and yet lived a very moral life at home. He didn't drink or smoke. If a man swore in front of ladies, either he or Jesse would have to leave the room.

Swope said the story will be told through the eyes of the various people who knew Jesse. The main problem in a Jesse James film, he admitted, is that the audience keeps waiting for the badman to be shot in the back by Bob Ford, "The Dirty Little Coward" in the popular ballad. But the producer has devised a way to disguise Ford and supply a surprise.

U.S. Employment Rockets In August

WASHINGTON (AP) — A record number of 66,752,000 persons held jobs in August, the government reports.

The total was swollen by the unusual number of students seeking and getting vacation jobs, the Census Bureau said.

The number of students getting jobs also brought a drop of 638,000 in the number of unemployed from July to August.

The number of jobless was listed at 2,195,000 in mid-August when the count was taken. This compared with 2,833,000 in July and with 2,237,000 in August, 1955.

July Retail Sales Show Slight Decline

COLUMBUS (AP)—The July steel strike forced Ohio retail sales in that month four per cent below the corresponding month of 1955, the Ohio State University Bureau of Business Research reported this week.

Despite the over-all drop, such business lines as men's and women's clothing showed increases over July 1955 figures.

Substantial decreases were recorded by motor vehicle dealers, groceries without fresh meats, filling stations and household appliances and music stores.

Ohio GOP Leaders To Miss Ike Fete

WASHINGTON (AP)—There does not seem to be any way around it, says Sen. Bricker's administrative assistant, John McElroy.

Ohio's Republican "brass," plus Senate GOP Leader Knowland of California, are going to miss President Eisenhower's campaign-opening "pep rally" at Gettysburg, Pa., Sept. 12.

It's not a matter of lack of enthusiasm; it's simply that the Ohio Republican Convention is set for the same day. And Knowland is scheduled as principal speaker.

Revision Of Ohio Taxation Program Said To Be Needed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Ohio's tax laws could be revised to avoid new or increased taxes, says Ferd F. Becker, veteran chief of the county affairs division of the state department of taxation.

But the former county auditor asserts the idea may be hard to sell to farm interests, key industries and even Mr. Taxpayer himself.

"There will be no need for new or increased taxes if the present tax structure is renovated and the exemptions eliminated," Becker said.

His observation followed a legislative study committee meeting at which a 50 per cent boost in auto license fees and other increases were suggested to get more financial aid for local governments.

The committee is studying the tax question in relation to Ohio government financial needs and plans to make recommendations for the legislative session starting next January.

Citing tax exemptions enjoyed by industry, Becker said:

"You could tax millions of dollars worth of jigs, tools, patterns and dies whch are now exempt and don't pay a nickel in taxes.

"What really ought to be done is to take the whole tax machinery and begin at the bottom, including real and public utility property, for real estate is the real backbone of taxation."

Becker also suggested removal of exemptions from the 3 per cent sales tax law, Ohio's largest single revenue source. He estimated that removal would permit a cut in the rate to 2 per cent.

Industry, farming and mining those benefiting most from sales tax exemptions, he explained.

Another problem, Becker continued, deals with increased demands for services from local governments as populations grow. Increased services needed include sewerage systems and disposal plants, utility and transportation facilities and more schools.

Becker suggested that their installation and operating costs be prorated and let those demanding the services decide whether they want to pay the bill.

He also suggested general uniformity in the vote required for approval of levies, regardless of their purpose. The present varying percentages set for voter approval tend to give some proposals advantages over others, Becker said.

Completion of the St. Lawrence Seaway, he added, will bring new demands for "services."

"Industry, coming into Ohio with jobs for thousands, will be demanding services of all kinds and local governments will be asked to furnish those services with limited finances," he said.

Becker expressed little real hope for removal of tax exemptions. Legislators from predominently rural sections can be expected to resist removal of exemptions benefiting farmers, he explained, while interests act similarly to protect their advantages.

Old B25 Bomber Coughs, Gives Up

DAYTON (AP)—Two Wright-Patterson Air Force Base fliers had a close squeak Wednesday in an ancient bomber. So did the unsuspecting residents of a couple of housing projects.

One engine of an old B25 Mitchell bomber, the type used in the Doolittle raid on Tokyo in 1952, quit just as the craft took off southwest from Wright-Patterson. The other engine began to "act up" almost immediately.

Capt. R. S. Christopher, the pilot, and Lt. Col. H. W. Dale, copilot, swung the crippled craft over the housing projects.

They coaxed the bomber to within a few feet of a west-bound runway at the base, set it down on the grass and walked away.

Family Life Seen Key To Negro Future

CINCINNATI (AP) — A Southern sociologist declared today that "as long as segregation is practiced in the modern urban community, there will continue to be problems of orderly family living among those who are segregated."

Dr. Mozell C. Hill, chairman of the Department of Sociology at Atlanta (Ga.) University, told delegates to the annual conference of the National Urban League here that the "failure of the community to be truly democratic" has caused greater social disorganization among Negro families than among whites.

Dr. Hill added:

"As the Negro attains more and more 'unsegregated education', as his participation in all phases of community life and as economic opportunities are extended, Negro famly life then, and only then, will begin to conform to the standard patterns of Amierican family living."

He asserted that the "chief and perhaps only" explanation for deviation in Negro family life patterns "stems from social isolation and its concomitants of economc deprivation, emotional frustration and cultural starvation."

"The Negro family," he said, "more than any other segment of the population, has been moving swiftly from a peasant and golf-like institution toward an urban companionship family based on democratic principles, mutual affecton and consensus of its members."

Because of a pattern of having been kept "separate and deprived," Dr. Hill said, "family living among Negroes in the modern urban community will inevitably carry an emotonally charged racial flavor."

He asserted that the "upperclass Negro family which is growing rapidly in numbers in the modern urban community, is an extremely lonely and isolated family. . . practically cut off from the rest of the community."

Mother Unable To Save Son, 6

BARBERTON (AP)—Mrs. Andrew Yeager, who doesn't know how to swim, plunged into the seven-foot deep water of the Ohio Canal in a futile effort to save her six-year-old son, Roger, from drowning.

Neighbors heard her screams and pulled her and the body of the boy from the canal which runs in front of her home. Mrs. Yeager had missed her son and, looking for him, saw him floating in the canal.

Revision Of Ohio Taxation Program Said To Be Needed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Ohio's tax laws could be revised to avoid new or increased taxes, says Ferd F. Becker, veteran chief of the county affairs division of the state department of taxation.

But the former county auditor asserts the idea may be hard to sell to farm interests, key industries and even Mr. Taxpayer himself.

"There will be no need for new or increased taxes if the present tax structure is renovated and the exemptions eliminated," Becker said.

His observation followed a legislative study committee meeting at which a 50 per cent boost in auto license fees and other increases were suggested to get more financial aid for local governments.

The committee is studying the tax question in relation to Ohio government financial needs and plans to make recommendations for the legislative session starting next January.

Citing tax exemptions enjoyed by industry, Becker said:

"You could tax millions of dollars worth of jigs, tools, patterns and dies whch are now exempt and don't pay a nickel in taxes.

"What really ought to be done is to take the whole tax machinery and begin at the bottom, including real and public utility property, for real estate is the real backbone of taxation."

Becker also suggested removal of exemptions from the 3 per cent sales tax law, Ohio's largest single revenue source. He estimated that removal would permit a cut in the rate to 2 per cent.

Industry, farming and mining those benefiting most from sales tax exemptions, he explained.

Another problem, Becker continued, deals with increased demands for services from local governments as populations grow. Increased services needed include sewerage systems and disposal plants, utility and transportation facilities and more schools.

Becker suggested that their installation and operating costs be prorated and let those demanding the services decide whether they want to pay the bill.

He also suggested general uniformity in the vote required for approval of levies, regardless of their purpose. The present varying percentages set for voter approval tend to give some proposals advantages over others, Becker said.

World Today

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press
News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP)—Arthur Larson, a pleasant, graying 46-year old lawyer, has a knack of saying not only what President Eisenhower likes to hear but what he likes to say, too.

Eisenhower liked a recent book by Larson so much he got him to help on his speech-writing. Larson worked on Eisenhower's acceptance speech at the Republican convention in San Francisco.

But Republicans like Larson, who has been undersecretary of labor two years, must make Democrats like Adlai Stevenson feel confused enough to scream in pain: "Get off my property or I'll call the sheriff. Or is this your property?"

In his 210-page book—"A Republican looks at his party"—Larson attempts to show the "new Republicanism" under Eisenhower has a "genius" for doing the right thing in running the government.

In fact he says the Republicans have discovered the "American consensus" — meaning general agreement among Americans on what to do—and at the same time gives the Democrats credit for very little.

It's a very cool piece of writing. And it may help the Republicans in this election. But it is hardly what a political scientist would consider a textbook on government.

Larson brushes over, almost without mentioning, the fact that the administration—no matter how well it runs the government—is standing on a foundation built up by Democratic programs over 20 years.

But Eisenhower endorsed the book lavishly at his news conference last week.

Still, Eisenhower bestowed his blessing with quadruple, built - in hedges which will let him escape through roof, basement or big front door anytime anything in this book backfires. Said Eisenhower of the book:

"I can't recall every detail that's in it (hedge No. 1) . . . So . . . I can't . . say I stand by every statement (hedge No 2 by every statement (hedge No. 2) I thought he (Larson) expressed my philosophy of government as well as I have seen it (and here comes hedge No. 4) in a book of that size."

Last Weekend Gives Record Turnpike Toll

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Ohio Turnpike had its biggest business over the Labor Day weekend.

The largest single day's traffic since the toll road opened last fall came Monday when 68,798 vehicles used the pike, paying $77,696 in tolls.

From Friday through Monday there were 237,317 cars and trucks using the pike, and the tolls amounted to $277,331, without counting charge accounts.

Commission Chairman James W. Shocknessy estimated today that income for the first year of turnpike operation will be about $14,825,000.

The commission chairman said August income on the turnpike was nearly two million dollars, the highest of any month since the toll road's opening Oct. 1, 1955.

Shocknessy said operating expenses in the first year will be about 3½ million dollars, while interest on turnpike bonds will be $10,595,000. He said this will leave more than $700,000 for application to debt, which he said the prospectus did not contemplate in the first year of operation.

Answering those he called "the precursors of doom" for the turnpike, he called attention to the income record and said the turnpike is an "assured success."

Man Questioned In Fatal Beating

COLUMBUS (AP)—Police are holding for investigation a 40-year old man they said admitted the fatal beating of Mrs. Linda Burns, also 40, after an argument.

Police identified the man as Samuel Cassidy. They said he had been living with Mrs. Burns, whose nearly nude body was found in her North Side apartment Tuesday. She died Wednesday night in University Hospital.

Weekly Food Review

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Veal and beef will be the most commonly featured meats in the nation's food stores this weekend.

Veal roasts, chops and cutlets will be priced to catch the housewife's eye. Beef, too, will be in assorted forms ranging from hamburger to porter house steak.

Beef prices actually are comparatively high in most areas, reflecting the recent soaring wholesale prices for grain-fattened cattle. Feeder cattle were in short supply during the first five months of the year, which brought on the high prices.

When the farmers saw the prices, however, they started expanding feeding operations. Eventually, this will mean lower prices but the process takes several months.

Frying chickens, pork loin, ham, lamb, turkey and tongue also will be featured in some areas.

Shoppers will find outstanding buys in cabbage, corn, cucumbers, eggplant, onions, potatoes and peppers in most areas this weekend, especially those where produce comes from nearby fields.

Endives, escarole, snap beans, lima beans, spinach, squash and tomatoes also rate as good buys in many sections.

Man Gets Second Tombstone 'Gift'

CHICAGO (AP) — Someone has gone to a lot of trouble for Frank J. Smith and he doesn't like it.

When Smith, a 47-year-old metal finisher, opened his front door Tuesday, he saw on his porch a 100-pound tombstone with his name inscribed on it. The same thing happened in July. Smith said he doesn't know how or why they turn up at his door.

He plans to remain with presidential candidate Adlai Stevenson on the current campaign tour until after their Sept. 13 appearance at Harrisburg, Pa.

Kefauver said his trip into Florida will help the Democrats kick off their campaign there Sept. 15. Then he will concentrate his efforts in Ohio, Michigan, Wisconsin and Midwest states.

Van Wert Rail Workman Killed

FORT WAYNE, Ind. (AP)—Kenneth E. Jenkins, 23, Van Weet, Ohio, a Pennsylvania Railroad brakeman, was crushed to death between two cars in the railroad's East Yards Wednesday.

Conductor W. E. Potts said Jenkins was working the hand brake on a car and was crushed against another car which was being switched.

Movie Sea Monster Expert Gets Deathly Sick At Sea

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—A fine business for Augie Lohman to be in: He's an expert in movie sea monsters and he gets deathly seasick.

Fortunately, Augue can do most of his creating on dry land. When he does have to put out to sea, he carries along a satchel of dramamine, "which saves my life."

Augie, a friendly, round-faced man, has been at sea with monsters for two or three years now. He probably will continue to be, what with Hollywood's current affection for amphibious beasts.

A special effects creator in the movies since 1928, he got on the sea kick with a quickie called "The Maze." That one called for a man-sized frog, which he whipped up out of foam rubber and latex.

When British technicians were counfounded in their efforts to create a credible white whale for "Moby Dick," Augie was sent for. He spent a year in England, manipulating a ninefoot model in a studio tank for the action scenes that turned out so successfully in the Gregory Peck film.

John Huston became so sold on Augie that he took him to Tahiti recently to scout possibilities for his next Herman Melville classc, "Typee." Augie will create a large shark for that one.

What's a kraken?

It's something awful. A 10-foot horror that crawls out of a snail-like shell and snakes its crusty body about while snapping pincers together. Not the sort of thing you'd like to find in your swimming pool some morning.

"The body is made of foam rubber with a latex covering," Augie explained, petting his monster fondly. "The whole thing moves automatically by compressed air."

He demonstrated by pulling some controls. The bellows-like frame for the body wiggled on cue like an Egyptian belly dancer.

"I wanted it to be automatic," Augie explained. "Too many movie monsters look just like what they are — dummies with men inside them."

The important thing in movie monsters, he explained, was in showing the beasts sparingly. "You've got to cut back to your actors and other things," he said. "If you stay on the monster too long, you destroy the illusion."

U.S. Negroes Make Spotty Work Gains

CINCINNATI (AP)—Dr. Joseph H. Douglass, program analyst for the Department of Health, Welfare and Education, said Wednesday Negroes have made considerable, but spotty, progress toward economic security in the last 15 years.

Douglass' address was prepared for the annual conference of the National Urban League, an interracial service agency.

He said that because the Negro family has "only better than half as much income as comparable white families, there is higher dependence among Negro families than white families upon income maintenance and other public programs."

The government analyst said in the last 15 years, Negro families have exceeded "in most instances the rate of progress made by white families toward the goal of economic security."

Ex-Industrialist Faces Tax Claim

CLEVELAND (AP) — C. Grief Raible, former president and chairman of the board of the Fanner Manufacturing Co., has been named in a $32,493 federal tax lien for unpaid income taxes filed in the county recorder's office.

The lien, which also named Raible's wife, Vera H., cited the taxes as being unpaid for 1951. The Raibles live in Chesterland.

Raible is engaged in a proxy fight for control of the Fanner Manufacturing Co., which was founded by his father, the late John Raible. He was deposed as president and chairman of the board of the $10 million company last fall.

World Today

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press
News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP)—Arthur Larson, a pleasant, graying 46-year old lawyer, has a knack of saying not only what President Eisenhower likes to hear but what he likes to say, too.

Eisenhower liked a recent book by Larson so much he got him to help on his speech-writing. Larson worked on Eisenhower's acceptance speech at the Republican convention in San Francisco.

But Republicans like Larson, who has been undersecretary of labor two years, must make Democrats like Adlai Stevenson feel confused enough to scream in pain: "Get off my property or I'll call the sheriff. Or is this your property?"

In his 210-page book—"A Republican looks at his party"—Larson attempts to show the "new Republicanism" under Eisenhower has a "genius" for doing the right thing in running the government.

In fact he says the Republicans have discovered the "American consensus" — meaning general agreement among Americans on what to do—and at the same time gives the Democrats credit for very little.

It's a very cool piece of writing. And it may help the Republicans in this election. But it is hardly what a political scientist would consider a textbook on government.

Larson brushes over, almost without mentioning, the fact that the administration—no matter how well it runs the government—is standing on a foundation built up by Democratic programs over 20 years.

But Eisenhower endorsed the book lavishly at his news conference last week.

Still, Eisenhower bestowed his blessing with quadruple, built - in hedges which will let him escape through roof, basement or big front door anytime anything in this book backfires. Said Eisenhower of the book:

"I can't recall every detail that's in it (hedge No. 1) . . . So . . . I can't . . say I stand by every statement (hedge No 2 by every statement (hedge No. 2) I thought he (Larson) expressed my philosophy of government as well as I have seen it (and here comes hedge No. 4) in a book of that size."

Last Weekend Gives Record Turnpike Toll

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Ohio Turnpike had its biggest business over the Labor Day weekend.

The largest single day's traffic since the toll road opened last fall came Monday when 68,798 vehicles used the pike, paying $77,696 in tolls.

From Friday through Monday there were 237,317 cars and trucks using the pike, and the tolls amounted to $277,331, without counting charge accounts.

Commission Chairman James W. Shocknessy estimated today that income for the first year of turnpike operation will be about $14,825,000.

The commission chairman said August income on the turnpike was nearly two million dollars, the highest of any month since the toll road's opening Oct. 1, 1955.

Shocknessy said operating expenses in the first year will be about 3½ million dollars, while interest on turnpike bonds will be $10,595,000. He said this will leave more than $700,000 for application to debt, which he said the prospectus did not contemplate in the first year of operation.

Answering those he called "the precursors of doom" for the turnpike, he called attention to the income record and said the turnpike is an "assured success."

Man Questioned In Fatal Beating

COLUMBUS (AP)—Police are holding for investigation a 40-year old man they said admitted the fatal beating of Mrs. Linda Burns, also 40, after an argument.

Police identified the man as Samuel Cassidy. They said he had been living with Mrs. Burns, whose nearly nude body was found in her North Side apartment Tuesday. She died Wednesday night in University Hospital.

Weekly Food Review

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Veal and beef will be the most commonly featured meats in the nation's food stores this weekend.

Veal roasts, chops and cutlets will be priced to catch the housewife's eye. Beef, too, will be in assorted forms ranging from hamburger to porter house steak.

Beef prices actually are comparatively high in most areas, reflecting the recent soaring wholesale prices for grain-fattened cattle. Feeder cattle were in short supply during the first five months of the year, which brought on the high prices.

When the farmers saw the prices, however, they started expanding feeding operations. Eventually, this will mean lower prices but the process takes several months.

Frying chickens, pork loin, ham, lamb, turkey and tongue also will be featured in some areas.

Shoppers will find outstanding buys in cabbage, corn, cucumbers, eggplant, onions, potatoes and peppers in most areas this weekend, especially those where produce comes from nearby fields.

Endives, escarole, snap beans, lima beans, spinach, squash and tomatoes also rate as good buys in many sections.

Man Gets Second Tombstone 'Gift'

CHICAGO (AP) — Someone has gone to a lot of trouble for Frank J. Smith and he doesn't like it.

When Smith, a 47-year-old metal finisher, opened his front door Tuesday, he saw on his porch a 100-pound tombstone with his name inscribed on it. The same thing happened in July. Smith said he doesn't know how or why they turn up at his door.

Movie Sea Monster Expert Gets Deathly Sick At Sea

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—A fine business for Augie Lohman to be in: He's an expert in movie sea monsters and he gets deathly seasick.

Fortunately, Augue can do most of his creating on dry land. When he does have to put out to sea, he carries along a satchel of dramamine, "which saves my life."

Augie, a friendly, round-faced man, has been at sea with monsters for two or three years now. He probably will continue to be, what with Hollywood's current affection for amphibious beasts.

A special effects creator in the movies since 1928, he got on the sea kick with a quickie called "The Maze." That one called for a man-sized frog, which he whipped up out of foam rubber and latex.

When British technicians were counfounded in their efforts to create a credible white whale for "Moby Dick," Augie was sent for. He spent a year in England, manipulating a ninefoot model in a studio tank for the action scenes that turned out so successfully in the Gregory Peck film.

John Huston became so sold on Augie that he took him to Tahiti recently to scout possibilities for his next Herman Melville classc, "Typee." Augie will create a large shark for that one.

What's a kraken?

It's something awful. A 10-foot horror that crawls out of a snail-like shell and snakes its crusty body about while snapping pincers together. Not the sort of thing you'd like to find in your swimming pool some morning.

"The body is made of foam rubber with a latex covering," Augie explained, petting his monster fondly. "The whole thing moves automatically by compressed air."

He demonstrated by pulling some controls. The bellows-like frame for the body wiggled on cue like an Egyptian belly dancer.

"I wanted it to be automatic," Augie explained. "Too many movie monsters look just like what they are — dummies with men inside them."

The important thing in movie monsters, he explained, was in showing the beasts sparingly. "You've got to cut back to your actors and other things," he said. "If you stay on the monster too long, you destroy the illusion."

U.S. Negroes Make Spotty Work Gains

CINCINNATI (AP)—Dr. Joseph H. Douglass, program analyst for the Department of Health, Welfare and Education, said Wednesday Negroes have made considerable, but spotty, progress toward economic security in the last 15 years.

Douglass' address was prepared for the annual conference of the National Urban League, an interracial service agency.

He said that because the Negro family has "only better than half as much income as comparable white families, there is higher dependence among Negro families than white families upon income maintenance and other public programs."

The government analyst said in the last 15 years, Negro families have exceeded "in most instances the rate of progress made by white families toward the goal of economic security."

Ex-Industrialist Faces Tax Claim

CLEVELAND (AP) — C. Grief Raible, former president and chairman of the board of the Fanner Manufacturing Co., has been named in a $32,493 federal tax lien for unpaid income taxes filed in the county recorder's office.

The lien, which also named Raible's wife, Vera H., cited the taxes as being unpaid for 1951. The Raibles live in Chesterland.

Raible is engaged in a proxy fight for control of the Fanner Manufacturing Co., which was founded by his father, the late John Raible. He was deposed as president and chairman of the board of the $10 million company last fall.

IT'S the LAW

This is another in a series of articles prepared by the Pickaway County Bar Association and printed by The Herald as a public service. Purpose of the series is merely to outline the law that applies, with variations, in common types of litigation.

Grace Period Important in Land Contract Deal

Purchase of a home is a big financial operation for the average person. It probably will be the largest simple investment of his lifetime. It is essential for him to know exactly what he's doing when he signs his name for such a purchase.

Some people buy homes by "land contract." Such a contract is all right for the homebuyer, depending on the way it's written. But if he doesn't read the contract carefully, or if he didn't understand it, he may be making a mistake.

A "land contract," as it is commonly understood, is a transaction in which the buyer does not immediately receive the deed to the property. This is important because he will not actually be the owner until he receives the deed.

The reason he does not receive the deed is because he has not made a big enough down payment on the home. Or perhaps he has not made any down payment at all.

* * *

THE VALUE to the buyer of using a land contract is that he can get a home without making a down payment or by making a very small one. Many persons could not purchase homes at all if they had to save enough money for a big down payment.

On the other hand, the seller of the home hardly can be expected to give up the deed, which is his right to the home, until he has been paid a fair part of the value of the home.

The land contract usually specifies that the deed shall be turned over to the buyer after a certain number of installments have been paid. This amount must be agreed to by both the buyer and the seller and written into the contract.

One of the important clauses of the land contract is the "grace period." This is the amount of leeway the buyer can have when he is unable to make one of his installment payments on time. Any buyer needs the protection of a grace period, because there is always the danger of such misfortunes as sickness or unemployment.

After a grace period has passed, the seller may sue to regain his property, even though the buyer has paid a large number of installments. Therefore, it is to the advantage of the buyer to have the grace period as long as possible.

Thirty days is often used for a grace period. But the length of time which is fair may vary with different contracts, depending on such facts as the size of the down payment, the size of installments and the length of time between installments.

It is also most important to know whether the seller's title to the property is clear at the time the land contract is signed.

* * *

PERHAPS the seller has a mortgage on the home. Maybe he owes back taxes or assessments. Perhaps there are liens or debts on the property for work by carpenters or other building mechanics. Such liens or debts on the property would make it impossible for the seller to deliver a clear title even though he signed a land contract. The seller can sell only what he has.

If the seller is married, the buyer should make sure that the seller's husband or wife also joins in signing the contract.

Otherwise, the buyer may find that he has paid for only part of the home. The husband or wife who does not sign could retain an interest in the property.

These are just a few of the problems which should be considered in buying a home by land contract. Others include: the right to get possession of the home and remove tenants; rate of interest and payment; insurance; provision for some return to the buyer if he makes substantial payments and then is unable to continue.

These and other considerations need close attention when a person is making the biggest purchase of his lifetime.

Convoy Navy Flier Killed In Air Crash

WINTON, N. C. (AP)—Further attempts were scheduled today to recover the bodies of two Navy pilots whose Cougar Jet fighters were reported to have collided Wednesday near this northeastern North Carolina community.

The victims were attached to Attack Squadron 66 at the Oceana Naval Air Station near Norfolk, Va. Fifth Naval District spokesman identified them as Lt. (J.G.) Donald E. Schuh, 25, of Syracuse, N. Y., and Ens. Richard G. Mattingly, 23, of Convoy, Ohio.

The two planes were on a routine training mission when, according to an eyewitness, they collided. Naval spokesman said they failed to pull out of a practice dive and crashed into a swamp.

The eyewitness, Mrs. Hershey Askew, told newsmen one plane was flying just above the treetops when it was struck from above by the second plane.

Deputy Sheriff Fred Liverman said the biggest piece of wreckage he could find was "about the size of your hand."

Great Britain fought in some 78 wars during the years between 1480 and 1945.

Woman's World Specialized; She Doesn't Have To Think

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor

Today's women never had it so good.

The age of science, electronics and automation has relieved them of most physical labor. And now the era of specialization has been developed to such a point that they hardly have to think.

Classified labels simplify shopping. Nowadays a customer can walk into a shop and say: "I want to buy a toy for a little boy 2 years old, with red hair and a mania for breaking things." At once the prescribed toy is produced — perhaps a sledge hammer and a supply of breakaway plastic furniture.

If she wants to read a book, she can look over the classified book store list: light summer fiction, escape literature, whodunits, inspirational books, travel books, books for young women who want to be glamorous, books for older women who want to be ditto, books on how to live longer, books on how to retire, books on how to do it yourself — ad infinitum.

Now the trend has extended even to music. Latest product of the age of specialization is a long-playing record entitled "Music for Expectant Mothers." Included is an assortment of selections chosen for their soothing qualities, such as "My Shining Hour," "For You," "There Is No Greater Love," "Exactly Like You," 'Soon" and 'My Baby's Comin' Home."

The idea is said to have been inspired by a leading obstetrician who recommends that his patients put aside household routine and spend an hour or so every day listening to anti-depressive music.

Kidnaper Enters Insanity Plea

MINEOLA, N. Y. (AP) — Angelo LaMarca, 31, pleaded innocent by reason of insanity Wednesday in the fatal kidnaping of Peter Weinberger, 33 days old. Trial was set for Oct. 1.

His attorney, David M. Markowitz, contended LaMarca, a machinist and parttime cab driver, was driven out of his mind by mounting debts.

The prosecution contends LaMarca has confessed kidnaping the baby July 4 from a patio at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Weinberger in Westbury, Long Island, and of abandoning the boy in a thicket the next day.

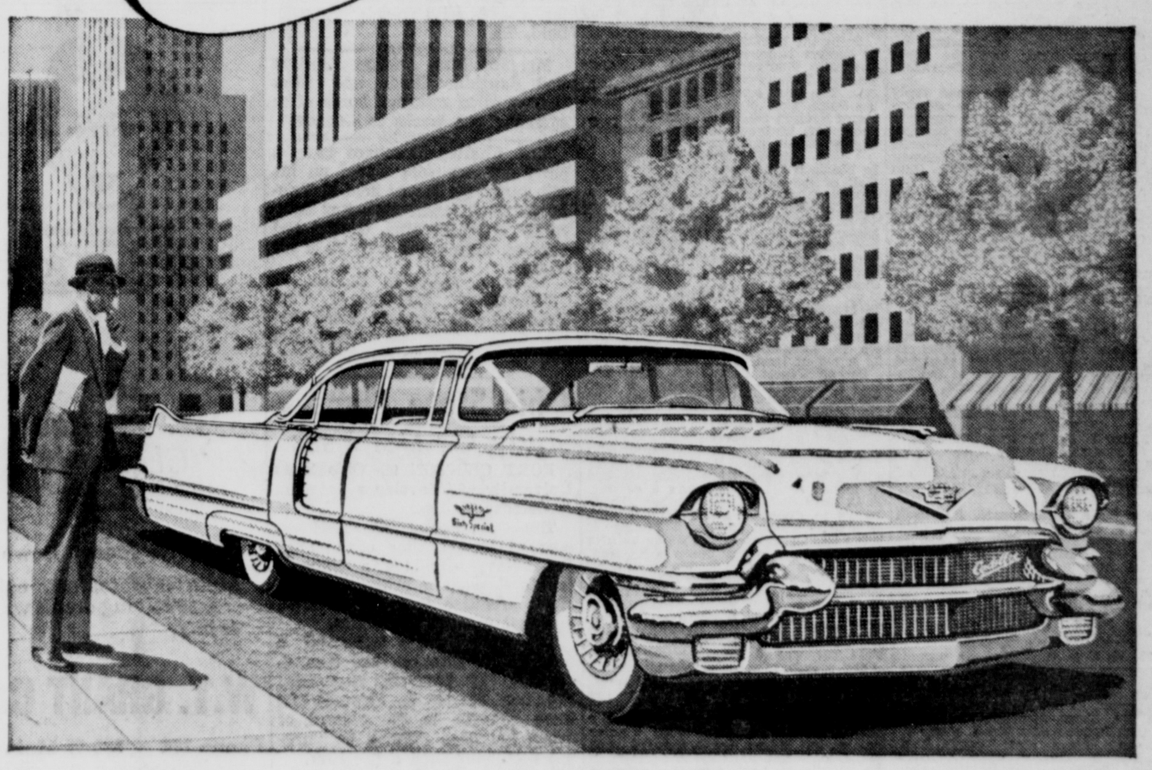
Cadillac



To the Man Who is Hesitating . . .

There are many motorists here in this community who have given serious consideration to the purchase of a new Cadillac car this year—and yet, for one reason or another, have not made the move.

If you are among them, we hope that you will pause to read the little message that follows. For we are sure you will find it interesting.

* * * *

Ordinarily, when a man hesitates to make the move to Cadillac, it is because he is not familiar with the practical aspects of Cadillac ownership.

Insofar as original cost is concerned, a Cadillac is eminently practical. Several models, in fact, are actually priced competitively with the so-called "medium-priced" makes.

Operating and maintenance costs are also remarkably low. We have heard it said by new owners that Cadillac is the most economical automobile they have ever owned.

And as for resale value—well, Cadillac traditionally retains a greater share of its worth through the years than any other motor car in the land.

In short, the great Cadillac car represents one of the wisest and soundest automotive investments on the highway today.

* * * *

The moral of our message is this: It is still not too late to set things right in a 1956 Cadillac of your own!

We have a selection of new Cadillacs on hand—and we can promise you both prompt delivery and a generous trade-in allowance.

Why not come in today?

Purchase of a home is a big financial operation for the average person. It probably will be the largest simple investment of his lifetime. It is essential for him to know exactly what he's doing when he signs his name for such a purchase.

Some people buy homes by "land contract." Such a contract is all right for the homebuyer, depending on the way it's written. But if he doesn't read the contract carefully, or if he didn't understand it, he may be making a mistake.

A "land contract," as it is commonly understood, is a transaction in which the buyer does not immediately receive the deed to the property. This is important because he will not actually be the owner until he receives the deed.

The reason he does not receive the deed is because he has not made a big enough down payment on the home. Or perhaps he has not made any down payment at all.

* * *

THE VALUE to the buyer of using a land contract is that he can get a home without making a down payment or by making a very small one. Many persons could not purchase homes at all if they had to save enough money for a big down payment.

On the other hand, the seller of the home hardly can be expected to give up the deed, which is his right to the home, until he has been paid a fair part of the value of the home.

The land contract usually specifies that the deed shall be turned over to the buyer after a certain number of installments have been paid. This amount must be agreed to by both the buyer and the seller and written into the contract.

One of the important clauses of the land contract is the "grace period." This is the amount of leeway the buyer can have when he is unable to make one of his installment payments on time. Any buyer needs the protection of a grace period, because there is always the danger of such misfortunes as sickness or unemployment.

After a grace period has passed, the seller may sue to regain his property, even though the buyer has paid a large number of installments. Therefore, it is to the advantage of the buyer to have the grace period as long as possible.

Thirty days is often used for a grace period. But the length of time which is fair may vary with different contracts, depending on such facts as the size of the down payment, the size of installments and the length of time between installments.

It is also most important to know whether the seller's title to the property is clear at the time the land contract is signed.

* * *

PERHAPS the seller has a mortgage on the home. Maybe he owes back taxes or assessments. Perhaps there are liens or debts on the property for work by carpenters or other building mechanics. Such liens or debts on the property would make it impossible for the seller to deliver a clear title even though he signed a land contract. The seller can sell only what he has.

If the seller is married, the buyer should make sure that the seller's husband or wife also joins in signing the contract.

Otherwise, the buyer may find that he has paid for only part of the home. The husband or wife who does not sign could retain an interest in the property.

These are just a few of the problems which should be considered in buying a home by land contract. Others include: the right to get possession of the home and remove tenants; rate of interest and payment; insurance; provision for some return to the buyer if he makes substantial payments and then is unable to continue.

These and other considerations need close attention when a person is making the biggest purchase of his lifetime.

Convoy Navy Flier Killed In Air Crash

WINTON, N. C. (AP)—Further attempts were scheduled today to recover the bodies of two Navy pilots whose Cougar Jet fighters were reported to have collided Wednesday near this northeastern North Carolina community.

The victims were attached to Attack Squadron 66 at the Oceana Naval Air Station near Norfolk, Va. Fifth Naval District spokesman identified them as Lt. (J.G.) Donald E. Schuh, 25, of Syracuse, N. Y., and Ens. Richard G. Mattingly, 23, of Convoy, Ohio.

The two planes were on a routine training mission when, according to an eyewitness, they collided. Naval spokesman said they failed to pull out of a practice dive and crashed into a swamp.

The eyewitness, Mrs. Hershey Askew, told newsmen one plane was flying just above the treetops when it was struck from above by the second plane.

Deputy Sheriff Fred Liverman said the biggest piece of wreckage he could find was "about the size of your hand."

Great Britain fought in some 78 wars during the years between 1480 and 1945.

Woman's World Specialized; She Doesn't Have To Think

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor

Today's women never had it so good.

The age of science, electronics and automation has relieved them of most physical labor. And now the era of specialization has been developed to such a point that they hardly have to think.

Classified labels simplify shopping. Nowadays a customer can walk into a shop and say: "I want to buy a toy for a little boy 2 years old, with red hair and a mania for breaking things." At once the prescribed toy is produced — perhaps a sledge hammer and a supply of breakaway plastic furniture.

If she wants to read a book, she can look over the classified book store list: light summer fiction, escape literature, whodunits, inspirational books, travel books, books for young women who want to be glamorous, books for older women who want to be ditto, books on how to live longer, books on how to retire, books on how to do it yourself — ad infinitum.

Now the trend has extended even to music. Latest product of the age of specialization is a long-playing record entitled "Music for Expectant Mothers." Included is an assortment of selections chosen for their soothing qualities, such as "My Shining Hour," "For You," "There Is No Greater Love," "Exactly Like You," 'Soon" and 'My Baby's Comin' Home."

The idea is said to have been inspired by a leading obstetrician who recommends that his patients put aside household routine and spend an hour or so every day listening to anti-depressive music.

Kidnaper Enters Insanity Plea

MINEOLA, N. Y. (AP) — Angelo LaMarca, 31, pleaded innocent by reason of insanity Wednesday in the fatal kidnaping of Peter Weinberger, 33 days old. Trial was set for Oct. 1.

His attorney, David M. Markowitz, contended LaMarca, a machinist and parttime cab driver, was driven out of his mind by mounting debts.

The prosecution contends LaMarca has confessed kidnaping the baby July 4 from a patio at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Weinberger in Westbury, Long Island, and of abandoning the boy in a thicket the next day.

Cadillac

To the Man Who is Hesitating . . .

There are many motorists here in this community who have given serious consideration to the purchase of a new Cadillac car this year—and yet, for one reason or another, have not made the move.

If you are among them, we hope that you will pause to read the little message that follows. For we are sure you will find it interesting.

* * * *

Ordinarily, when a man hesitates to make the move to Cadillac, it is because he is not familiar with the practical aspects of Cadillac ownership.

Insofar as original cost is concerned, a Cadillac is eminently practical. Several models, in fact, are actually priced competitively with the so-called "medium-priced" makes.

Operating and maintenance costs are also remarkably low. We have heard it said by new owners that Cadillac is the most economical automobile they have ever owned.

And as for resale value—well, Cadillac traditionally retains a greater share of its worth through the years than any other motor car in the land.

In short, the great Cadillac car represents one of the wisest and soundest automotive investments on the highway today.

* * * *

The moral of our message is this: It is still not too late to set things right in a 1956 Cadillac of your own!

We have a selection of new Cadillacs on hand—and we can promise you both prompt delivery and a generous trade-in allowance.

Why not come in today?

OHIO OUTDOORS

from THE OHIO DIVISION OF WILDLIFE

The Ohio Division of Wildlife is announcing that while there will not be an experimental squirrel hunting season in 1956 as there was in 1955, nimrods wishing to hunt squirrels on the Delaware, Waterloo, Brush Creek and Shawnee-Roosevelt public hunting areas between September 15 and September 22, must secure daily permits on the area to be hunted.

Checking stations located at these areas will issue the free permits at the beginning of the hunt. Hunters must also check out through the same checking station at the end of the day.

Location of the checking stations on the four areas are as follows: Brush Creek, Jefferson County; three miles east out of Monroeville, turn south on county road 1½ miles to service building; Delaware Reservoir Area, Delaware, Morrow and Marion Counties; near large area sign by the dam on County Road 220; Shawnee-Roosevelt Area, Scioto and Adams Counties, Route 125 near area building approximately four miles northwest of Friendship; Waterloo Wildlife Area, Athens County, take state route 78 east out of Glouster for 6 miles, turn northeast for ¾ mile to checking station at service building.

It is important that each hunter check in and out at the designated stations and at all times stay within the law. The bag limit on opening day is four and the possession limit after opening day is eight with hunting hours lasting from daylight to dark.

* * *

DURING LATE June and early July, the Ohio Division of Wildlife field workers took game counts in twenty-one Ohio counties. These routes were run in areas outside of what is considered the better pheasant range and were well distributed.

Results indicate that, exclusive of the better pheasant range, the 1956 statewide rabbit population is at a level similar to that of a year ago. Regional trends showed changes of less than ten percent.

The ratio of adults to juveniles is also very similar to that of a year ago. The highway kill was down from last year.

Barring the loss of a greater than average number of rabbits to natural causes prior to the hunting season or unsuccessful production or survival of late litters, Ohio hunters this year should probably find about as many rabbits as last year.

As this survey was designed to provide information on farm game population trends outside the better pheasant range, only a limited number of pheasants were observed. While the number of pheasants seen was down about twenty-five percent from last year, the sample of birds seen was probably not great enough to place a high degree of reliability on the trends as indicated.

Pheasant broods were smaller than a year ago and were hatched later. This trend in brood size and hatch date is similar to that being found in the better pheasant range.

* * *

INDICATIONS that while the pheasant population may be somewhat smaller than a year ago, the cold rainy weather did not have the disastrous effect that it might have had. Apparently there was considerable successful renesting.

The Ohio Wildlife Council will hold their regular monthly meeting on Friday, September 7, at the Catawba Cliff Club, Port Clinton. This meeting follows the policy established several years ago of holding one or more meetings each year in different parts of the state.

2 Men Flee Ancient Jail In Canton

CANTON, Ohio (AP)—Two men, already accused of escaping from the Marion Honor camp by going over a wall, escaped from the Stark County jail Wednesday night by going through a wall.

Sheriff Henry W. Grosglauss said Donald R. Smith, 24, and Thomas R. Moyer, 21, scraped the mortar out between bricks, pushed out a two-foot-square section, and lowered themselves to a driveway 12 feet below on a rope of mattress covers and clothes tied together.

"That's this jail," said the sheriff. "Thye built it in 1880 and it's a dilapidated orange crate. You can saw through the wall with a coat hanger."

The sheriff said a third prisoner, William Lawrence Reeves, 25, Canton parole violator, was also in on the escape plot, but was caught by jailers.

Grossglaus said the three men sawed a bar in their cell. Smith and Moyer hid in a ventilator shaft until they had a chance to scrape through the wall with the cell bar and a piece of an iron bunk.

He said Smith and Moyer, both of Canton, were being held on the Marion escape charges, and two counts of breaking and entering in Canton.

A piece of charcoal in a tool chest will absorb moisture and prevent rusting.

Lopez Moaning As Tribe Slumps

CLEVELAND (AP)—"I don't think I've seen the club go into a "worse slump," said Manager Al Lopez of the Cleveland Indians. And he's seen them go into a lot of slumps.

"We haven't hit all season, but we haven't been this bad," moaned the senor Wednesday after the team flew home from Kansas City where they had lost two.

He called a full dress batting practice for the whole squad today, an off day.

The Indians open a four game series against the Chicago White Sox Friday night.

OHIO OUTDOORS

from THE OHIO DIVISION OF WILDLIFE

The Ohio Division of Wildlife is announcing that while there will not be an experimental squirrel hunting season in 1956 as there was in 1955, nimrods wishing to hunt squirrels on the Delaware, Waterloo, Brush Creek and Shawnee-Roosevelt public hunting areas between September 15 and September 22, must secure daily permits on the area to be hunted.

Checking stations located at these areas will issue the free permits at the beginning of the hunt. Hunters must also check out through the same checking station at the end of the day.

Location of the checking stations on the four areas are as follows: Brush Creek, Jefferson County; three miles east out of Monroeville, turn south on county road 1½ miles to service building; Delaware Reservoir Area, Delaware, Morrow and Marion Counties; near large area sign by the dam on County Road 220; Shawnee-Roosevelt Area, Scioto and Adams Counties, Route 125 near area building approximately four miles northwest of Friendship; Waterloo Wildlife Area, Athens County, take state route 78 east out of Glouster for 6 miles, turn northeast for ¾ mile to checking station at service building.

It is important that each hunter check in and out at the designated stations and at all times stay within the law. The bag limit on opening day is four and the possession limit after opening day is eight with hunting hours lasting from daylight to dark.

* * *

DURING LATE June and early July, the Ohio Division of Wildlife field workers took game counts in twenty-one Ohio counties. These routes were run in areas outside of what is considered the better pheasant range and were well distributed.

Results indicate that, exclusive of the better pheasant range, the 1956 statewide rabbit population is at a level similar to that of a year ago. Regional trends showed changes of less than ten percent.

The ratio of adults to juveniles is also very similar to that of a year ago. The highway kill was down from last year.

Barring the loss of a greater than average number of rabbits to natural causes prior to the hunting season or unsuccessful production or survival of late litters, Ohio hunters this year should probably find about as many rabbits as last year.

As this survey was designed to provide information on farm game population trends outside the better pheasant range, only a limited number of pheasants were observed. While the number of pheasants seen was down about twenty-five percent from last year, the sample of birds seen was probably not great enough to place a high degree of reliability on the trends as indicated.

Pheasant broods were smaller than a year ago and were hatched later. This trend in brood size and hatch date is similar to that being found in the better pheasant range.

* * *

INDICATIONS that while the pheasant population may be somewhat smaller than a year ago, the cold rainy weather did not have the disastrous effect that it might have had. Apparently there was considerable successful renesting.

The Ohio Wildlife Council will hold their regular monthly meeting on Friday, September 7, at the Catawba Cliff Club, Port Clinton. This meeting follows the policy established several years ago of holding one or more meetings each year in different parts of the state.

Prof. Tebbetts Says Redlegs Can Go All Way

Crucial 3-Game Win At Milwaukee Seen As Psychological Boost

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Manager Birdie Tebbetts, an off-season insurance agent who knows all about life-expectancy tables, figures his Cincinnati Redlegs "can go all the way—now."

"Our whole mental outlook rested on that four-game series in Milwaukee," said Birdie. "It was the psychological (he also has touched the sciences in post-graduate work) turning point. Now that we've come this far, our guys figure 'why stop now?"

All the happy talk followed a startling, three-game sweep by second place Cincy after losing the opener to the Braves. The homer happy Redlegs switched to singles and pounded Milwaukee and southpaw Warren Spahn 12-2 in the series windup Wednesday cutting the Braves' National League lead to 1½ games.

The three-game kick also has put Manager Fred Haney to thinking about a shakeup in the Braves' lineup. Milwaukee now has only a two-game edge over Cincinnati and Brooklyn in the "lost" column with 21 games left. The Redlegs have 20 games remaining, Brooklyn 21.

The sweep also kept Brooklyn's third place world champs in the race. Struggling through an eight-game schedule in six days, the Dodgers climbed to within 2 games of the lead by slipping past Pittsburgh 4-3 Wednesday night—their fifth victory in the eight-game nightmare.

St. Louis defeated the Chicago Cubs 2-1 in 11 innings and New York's Giants trimmed Philadelphia 5-4 in 10 in the other NL games.

In the American, the New York Yankees built their lead to 9½ games by breaking Willard Nixon's jinx with a 5-3 decision over Boston. Washington defeated Baltimore 2-0. Second place Cleveland, Chicago, Detroit and Kansas City were not scheduled.

Rookie Frank Robinson and Roy McMillan each drove in two runs as the Redlegs scored five times on five hits in the second off Spahn, who sought his 200th career victory. Buster Freeman hustled in to relieve Tom Acker after Joe Adcock's 35th home run, with one on, in the fourth and gave one hit over 4 1-3 innings to nail his 13th victory — second in two days. Four unearned runs in the fifth, with Freeman's double — his first 1956 hit — scoring two, packed it away for the Redlegs, who now have won 10 of their last 12. They had 15 hits against five pitchers.

The Dodgers, with just five hits off loser Ron Kline and Elroy Face, made it on Jackie Robinson's squeeze bunt in the sixth. A wild pitch set it up. Duke Snider reclaimed the NL homer lead, breaking a tie with Redleg Robinson, with his 38th, a two-run poke. Gil Hodges hit his 26th. It was Snider's first in nine games, Hodges' first in 19.

19 Lettermen Seen On Deck For Michigan Grid Combine

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP)—Michigan's Wolverines, who just missed the Big Ten football title and a Rose Bowl trip last year, will be "thinner, but tougher" this fall.

With 9 returning lettermen and a half dozen fine sophomores, Coach Bennie Oosterbaan thinks Michigan potentially is better than the 1955 Wolverines, who lost all the marbles in a closing 17-0 spanking by Ohio State.

The title thus went to the Buckeyes (6-0) and cost Michigan (5-2) a Rose Bowl bid which went to runnerup Michigan State (5-1).

"We're not as solid as last year, no more than two deep at any position," said Oosterbaan. "But we'll be tough to lick if we're not injured."

Bennie concedes that much of Michigan's success will hinge on whether two fine sophomore backs deliver as starters. They are 205-pound Bob Ptacek (pronounced tot-check), 19, from Cleveland, Ohio, and 212-pound John Herrnstein, 18, Chillicothe, Ohio.

Ptacek is tabbed to start at tailback, or the left half position in Michigan's multiple attack, and Herrnstein, whose dad, William H. Herrnstein, was a halfback teammate of Oosterbaan's at Michigan in the mid-1920's, gets the important fullback call.

Oosterbaan has two seasoned quarterbacks, Jim Maddock and Jim Van Pelt, whom he describes as "adequate." But neither provides the strong passing arm Bennie would like for his two great ends, Ron Kramer and Tom Maentz, and his great wing back, Terry Barr.

Thus, Ptacek, a good passer, may start firing passes on the run to enhance the threat of Michigan's tricky, dangerous ground attack.

Again, Michigan has a preponderance of home games in its cavernous bowl which seats 100,000. Seven of the nine Wolverine games this season are at home, including the first five. UCLA opens at Ann Arbor Sept. 29, followed by Michigan State, Army, Northwestern and Minnesota. The two "away" games are at Iowa Nov. 3 and at Ohio State Nov. 24 with home tilts against Illinois and Iowa.

County Schools To Reschedule Football Event

A gridiron preview featuring all six-man football teams of Pickaway County Schools, previously scheduled for Saturday at the fairgrounds, has been postponed until Sept. 14. The new date falls on Friday, during the County Fair.

The pre-season grid show was delayed because Williamsport High School will be unable to field a team this year. The original 1956 county schedule, made up several weeks ago, included the Deercreek gridders.

In that Williamsport will not participate this year, the old schedule will have to be revised.

According to Howard Hosler, Walnut Township School superintendent and also head of the county football league, Williamsport made every effort to organize a team for the coming season.

"However, even after school started, enough boys could not be rounded up at the school to form a squad," the league official pointed out.

Hosler said the new league schedule will be completed and released within the next few days.

Mexican Collects Sixth Round KO

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Raul Macias, an artist in the ring with dynamite in his right fist, headed home to Mexico City today, knockout winner over clever Larry Bataan of Manila, P.I., in the sixth round of their nationally televised fight.

A short left jab followed by a straight right to the chin, perfectly executed, sent Bataan down for the full count after 2 minutes, 52 seconds of the sixth round here Wednesday night.

Referee Mushy Callahan tolled off the 10 with Bataan trying but unable to get up.

Selwyn Jones, Michigan State distance runner from Hamilton, Ont., will captain the 1957 Spartan track team.

Mantle Lagging In Homer Race

NEW YORK (AP)—Mickey Mantle, still homerless in Boston's Fenway Park this season, is two behind Babe Ruth's record-60 pace of 1927 today.

The young New York Yankee centerfielder, with 47 home runs in the bag, had just a single in four tries at Boston Wednesday night as the American League leaders defeated the Red Sox 5-3. It was Mantle's 134th game, leaving 20 to be played. Ruth smacked two in his 134th game for a 49 total.

Iowa-Indiana Set For TV Showing

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — The first of five Big Ten football games to be televised regionally by the National Broadcasting Co. this fall will be the Iowa at Indiana Sept. 29.

Bill Reed, assistant commissioner, said Wednesday night the other games in the regional setup along with a nationally telecast Big Ten game also over NBC will be announced as the season progresses.

3 Ex-Winners In Akron Tourney

AKRON (AP)—Three former winners will be among a field of 159 in the sixth annual Rubber City Open Golf Tournament which starts here today.

They are Tommy Bolt of Houston, Tex., the 1954 victor; Art Wall Jr. of Pocono Manor, Pa., 1953; and Jay Herbert of Sanford, Fla., 1952.

Last year's champion, Henry Ransom, has a foot injury and will not defend his title in the $19,000 tourney.

Others entered in the 72-hole medal competition include Dow Finsterwald, third among the top money-winners in the pro circuit.

John B. Kelly, father of Grace Kelly and president of the Atlantic City race track, won the Olympic single sculls title in the 1920 Olympics at Antwerp.

Janowicz's Grid Future Questioned

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A doctor says it is problematical whether Vic Janowicz, injured Aug. 18 in a car accident, will play football again this year or any year.

But the husky Washington Redskin halfback predicted from his bed at Hollywood Presbyterian Hospital that he would be back in unnform in "another week."

Janowicz, who suffered a severe concussion in the accident, said, "I feel good and plan to go on with my career."

Prof. Tebbetts Says Redlegs Can Go All Way

Crucial 3-Game Win At Milwaukee Seen As Psychological Boost

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Manager Birdie Tebbetts, an off-season insurance agent who knows all about life-expectancy tables, figures his Cincinnati Redlegs "can go all the way—now."

"Our whole mental outlook rested on that four-game series in Milwaukee," said Birdie. "It was the psychological (he also has touched the sciences in post-graduate work) turning point. Now that we've come this far, our guys figure 'why stop now?"

All the happy talk followed a startling, three-game sweep by second place Cincy after losing the opener to the Braves. The homer happy Redlegs switched to singles and pounded Milwaukee and southpaw Warren Spahn 12-2 in the series windup Wednesday cutting the Braves' National League lead to 1½ games.

The three-game kick also has put Manager Fred Haney to thinking about a shakeup in the Braves' lineup. Milwaukee now has only a two-game edge over Cincinnati and Brooklyn in the "lost" column with 21 games left. The Redlegs have 20 games remaining, Brooklyn 21.

The sweep also kept Brooklyn's third place world champs in the race. Struggling through an eight-game schedule in six days, the Dodgers climbed to within 2 games of the lead by slipping past Pittsburgh 4-3 Wednesday night—their fifth victory in the eight-game nightmare.

St. Louis defeated the Chicago Cubs 2-1 in 11 innings and New York's Giants trimmed Philadelphia 5-4 in 10 in the other NL games.

In the American, the New York Yankees built their lead to 9½ games by breaking Willard Nixon's jinx with a 5-3 decision over Boston. Washington defeated Baltimore 2-0. Second place Cleveland, Chicago, Detroit and Kansas City were not scheduled.

Rookie Frank Robinson and Roy McMillan each drove in two runs as the Redlegs scored five times on five hits in the second off Spahn, who sought his 200th career victory. Buster Freeman hustled in to relieve Tom Acker after Joe Adcock's 35th home run, with one on, in the fourth and gave one hit over 4 1-3 innings to nail his 13th victory — second in two days. Four unearned runs in the fifth, with Freeman's double — his first 1956 hit — scoring two, packed it away for the Redlegs, who now have won 10 of their last 12. They had 15 hits against five pitchers.

The Dodgers, with just five hits off loser Ron Kline and Elroy Face, made it on Jackie Robinson's squeeze bunt in the sixth. A wild pitch set it up. Duke Snider reclaimed the NL homer lead, breaking a tie with Redleg Robinson, with his 38th, a two-run poke. Gil Hodges hit his 26th. It was Snider's first in nine games, Hodges' first in 19.

Rebuilding Soil Fertility Proved Its Value In Drought Years

Pickaway County farmers can obtain experienced advice and up-to-date literature on their farming problems at the County Extension Office located in the Post Office Building, S. Court St., Circleville. The office here is the link between district farmers and the College of Agriculture, Ohio State University.

Soil fertility cannot take the place of water, but it can minimize drought and help maintain crop yields at better levels in severe dry seasons, reports the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee.

"Corn yields averaged 39 bushels per acre in the three drought years of 1952-54 on a 'rebuilt' 114-acre Midwestern farm, compared to an average of only 4.3 bushels in the unfavorable growing seasons of 1945 and 1947, before a 10-year fertility rebuilding program took hold on the run-down soil," says a statement made public by the committee.

"In four good growing seasons from 1948 through 1951, corn yields on this rebuilt land averaged 61.5 bushels per acre, with yields in two of the years reaching 70 and 72 bushels, respectively."

The committee points out that there have been five good and five unfavorable growing seasons in the 10 years since the farm was purchased by its present owner. The committee's figures are based on a study by the Doane Agricultural Service.

"Oats yields in the drought years of 1952-54 averaged 48.7 bushels per acre," the statement continues, "compared with only 4.5 bushels in the poor seasons of 1945 and 1947. Evidence that oats were least affected by drought is indicated by the fact that yields averaged 43.9 bushels in the favorable seasons of 1948-51.

The committee reports that soybeans yields averaged 20.9 bushels per acre in the drought years of 1952-54, as against only 2.7 bushels in 1945 and 1947. In years of adequate moisture from 1948 through 1951, soybean yields averaged 30.15 bushels, going as high as 33.3 in one year.

"Even in the last three drought years, returns on the original investment ranged from 7 to 10.3 per cent, compared with losses of about 1.5 per cent in the earlier drought years a decade ago, before the soil fertility build-up had its effects," says the committee.

A new regional publication on quackgrass control is now ready for distribution in Ohio.

Published cooperatively by agricultural experiment stations in the north central states, Ohio included, this bulletin covers the identification and control of the troublesome weed.

Other features of the booklet include information on how quackgrass spreads and how to control it by starving, drying or freezing.

Chemicals effective in killing quackgrass are expensive and prevent use of the land for one or more seasons, the bulletin states. Lower rates of application and cheaper treatments, however, can suppress its growth for a season.

Ohio residents may get a free copy of the quckgrass control bulletin by writing to the mailing room of the Ohio Agricultural Experiment station at Wooster.

Ohio's tree population has increased steadily during the last 10 years.

Citing figures from a recent forest survey by the Central States Forest Experiment station, F. W. Dean, Ohio State University extension forester, says Ohio has approximately 5,396,000 acres of commercial forest land, nearly 2 million acres more than in 1944.

Less than half the commercial forest land in Ohio is classified as sawtimber or stands containing at least 1,500 board feet per acre, Dean says. The rest is dominated by trees from pole to cordwood size. Of the sawtimber volume, Dean points out, less than 20 percent is high quality logs suitable for veneer and grade lumber. Eighty percent is suitable for ties, industrial lumber and local use.

Gross volume of standing sawtimber is nearly 14½ billion feet. This is an average of about 2,600 board feet per acre and ranks high among other states in the Central States hardwood region, according to Dean.

Ohio's annual sawtimber growth is exceeding cut by 476 million board feet, Dean points out, but older growth sawlogs, 20 inches or more in diameter, are being depleted faster than they are being replaced.

Future lumber in Ohio, says Dean, will come from smaller sawlogs; increased growth per acre will continue, and there will be a sharp trend toward new industries using chemical wood charcoal and pulpwood.

Ohio Dem Parley Saturday To Hear Stevenson, Lausche

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Here is the complete program of the 1956 Ohio Democratic Convention convening at 9:30 a.m. Saturday in Veterans Memorial Auditorium here, with presidential candidate Adlai Stevenson as the principal speaker:

9:30 a.m.—Call to order by William L. Coleman, state chairman; introduction of Ohio's Democratic mayors, and keynote address by M. E. Sensenbrenner, mayor of Columbus.

12 noon—Box luncheon; presentation of congressional candidates; address by Rep. Wayne L. Hays of 18th congressional district; recess for committee meetings and workshops.

3:45 p.m. — Convention reconvenes in auditorium with installation of permanent officers of convention and presentation of Stevenson, who will give the principal address. He will be presented by Michael V. DiSalle, Democratic gubernatorial candidate.

6:30 p.m.—Convention banquet; presentation of Democratic candidates for state offices; address by Gov. Frank J. Lausche, candidate for the U.S. Senate. Lausche will be presented by Harry R. Meredith, chairman of the State Democratic Central Committee.

Meanwhile, Robert Reider, Port Clinton publisher, urged adoption of "a dynamic, strongly-worded platform by convention delegates.

Reider, former state legislator who placed third in last May's five-man race for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, said "a united Democratic party will sweep Mike DiSalle (Democratic gubernatorial nominee) and the entire ticket into office."

But Reider warned: "The party unity we enjoy now in Ohio must be supported with a positive program that will capture the imagination of voters everywhere when they go to the polls in November." He urged adoption of a strong platform "so the nine million people of Ohio will know that our party alone stands behind the common man on every vital issue."

Zanesville Water Rate Rule Rapped

COLUMBUS (AP) — The Zanesville Taxpayers and Citizens League has asked the Ohio Supreme Court to force action on the league's attempt to obtain a referendum vote on Zanesville's new water rate ordinance.

The league's request for a writ of mandamus was filed by David Clayman, Columbus attorney. It seeks to compel the Zanesville city clerk to check signatures on a petition seeking the referendum and certify it to the board of elections. The Zanesville city solicitor has ruled the rate ordinance is not subject to referendum.

Rebuilding Soil Fertility Proved Its Value In Drought Years

Pickaway County farmers can obtain experienced advice and up-to-date literature on their farming problems at the County Extension Office located in the Post Office Building, S. Court St., Circleville. The office here is the link between district farmers and the College of Agriculture, Ohio State University.

Soil fertility cannot take the place of water, but it can minimize drought and help maintain crop yields at better levels in severe dry seasons, reports the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee.

"Corn yields averaged 39 bushels per acre in the three drought years of 1952-54 on a 'rebuilt' 114-acre Midwestern farm, compared to an average of only 4.3 bushels in the unfavorable growing seasons of 1945 and 1947, before a 10-year fertility rebuilding program took hold on the rundown soil," says a statement made public by the committee.

"In four good growing seasons from 1948 through 1951, corn yields on this rebuilt land averaged 61.5 bushels per acre, with yields in two of the years reaching 70 and 72 bushels, respectively."

The committee points out that there have been five good and five unfavorable growing seasons in the 10 years since the farm was purchased by its present owner. The committee's figures are based on a study by the Doane Agricultural Service.

"Oats yields in the drought years of 1952-54 averaged 48.7 bushels per acre," the statement continues, "compared with only 4.5 bushels in the poor seasons of 1945 and 1947. Evidence that oats were least affected by drought is indicated by the fact that yields averaged 43.9 bushels in the favorable seasons of 1948-51.

The committee reports that soybeans yields averaged 20.9 bushels per acre in the drought years of 1952-54, as against only 2.7 bushels in 1945 and 1947. In years of adequate moisture from 1948 through 1951, soybean yields averaged 30.15 bushels, going as high as 33.3 in one year.

"Even in the last three drought years, returns on the original investment ranged from 7 to 10.3 per cent, compared with losses of about 1.5 per cent in the earlier drought years a decade ago, before the soil fertility build-up had its effects," says the committee.

A new regional publication on quackgrass control is now ready for distribution in Ohio.

Published cooperatively by agricultural experiment stations in the north central states, Ohio included, this bulletin covers the identification and control of the troublesome weed.

Other features of the booklet include information on how quackgrass spreads and how to control it by starving, drying or freezing.

Chemicals effective in killing quackgrass are expensive and prevent use of the land for one or more seasons, the bulletin states. Lower rates of application and cheaper treatments, however, can suppress its growth for a season.

Ohio residents may get a free copy of the quckgrass control bulletin by writing to the mailing room of the Ohio Agricultural Experiment station at Wooster.

Ohio's tree population has increased steadily during the last 10 years.
